Foreword

To celebrate our Indiana's Birthday,
And give a picture of the past year;
A record of the Class of Nineteen Twenty,
Review in part the many things that happened
In clubs and organizations and athletics;
To bring back memories of the days in college
To those who call her now their Alma Mater,
And keep the present days forever living;
These are our aims, these the inspiration
To set about the task.

THE OLD DOORWAY

The STORY of INDIANA UNIVERSITY

ON a certain day in July, 1820, (history does not record anything more definite), Charles Dewey, David H. Maxwell, John M. Jenkins, Jonathan Nichols and William Lowe, authorized by the General Assembly of the same year to select "an eligible and convenient site for a seminary", met at Bloomington and chose the place of founding the State Seminary. In their report to the next legislature they said: "The site chosen is about one quarter of a mile due west from Bloomington, on a beautiful eminence and convenient to an excellent spring of water, the only one on the section that could with convenience answer the purposes of a seminary".

The native beeches, maples, oaks and poplars, still growing close around, the thickness of the July foliage and thickets of green, made the trustees overlook the highlands to the east and west—the contrasting upland and lowland which greet the eye of the Bloomington visitor and University student today. True, the "excellent spring of water", the trustees naively said, was the only one "that could with convenience answer the purpose of a seminary,—as if the art of digging wells was not yet known"; wrote the late Judge David D. Banta, writer of the early history of Indiana University.

A plan of building was proposed "on the plan of Princeton College in New Jersey"—the historic Nassau Hall. Over twenty months passed after the location was made before the work of building was actually begun. Two buildings were agreed upon, one for the "reception of students" and one for a professor's dwelling; the latter was thirty-one feet long and eighteen feet wide and cost $891. The seminary edifice proper was sixty feet long and thirty-one feet wide, two stories high, faced to the east, with a chapel and several recitation rooms, costing in all $2400.

In this small way was the spirit of the constitutional convention at Corydon, June 1816, embodied, where it was written that, "It shall be the duty of the General Assembly, as soon as circumstances will permit, to provide by law for a general system of education ascending in a regular graduation from township schools to a State University, wherein tuition shall be gratis and equally open to all".

This beginning of the future University in large measure was the result of the untiring efforts of David H. Maxwell at the sessions of the General Assembly during December and January, 1820, and of him can it be better said, more than any other, that "he was the father of Indiana University". On January 20, 1820, the day we celebrate as Foundation Day, the law which Dr. Maxwell sponsored was signed by the Governor and became the law of the land.

It was not until the first of May, 1824, that the Seminary was opened, and that Baynard R. Hall, a young man destined to be the first professor, a graduate of Union College and a minister of the Presbyterian church, began his duties as teacher.

On this first May day morning, a heterogenous crowd of youthful candidates for seminary learning awaited Professor Hall at the "new college". Many of the young men carried with them their spelling books and readers and ink-bottles and copy-books, having but forsaken the village schoolmaster for the

INDIANA COLLEGE

“higher learning”. But it was Greek and Latin only at the “new college”, and the boys with the spelling books and readers and ink-bottles and copy-books were soon returned to the drowsy hum of lessons in the town schoolhouse.

Ten boys were left in the Seminary after the weeding out of candidates, to begin the courses in Greek and Latin. All the students, as far as is known, were from Indiana homes, and nearly every county on the border and many of the inland counties were represented during the period of the Seminary which followed. Those who became students at the “new college” either walked from their homes to Bloomington, or travelled on horse-back. Most of them would “ride and tie”, a method by which two would travel with one horse; one would ride in advance a given distance and tie the horse and walk on, leaving his companion to come up and mount and ride on past the foot-man a proper distance, when he would in turn dismount, tie, and walk on. Those who walked carried their clothes with them, tied up in a handkerchief, and in riding, the habit was to carry all clothes necessary for a term in the saddle bags.

In those days of a hundred years ago, the students found rooms and board with the citizens of the town, in much the same manner as students have done since, and a house where two or more stayed was designated a “fort” after the old forts built against the Indians during the troublesome times of 1811 to 1814. Not more than three hundred persons lived in Bloomington at the time, in the little clustering of cabins around the square.

For a period of three years—1824 to 1827—Baynard R. Hall was the only professor in the Indiana Seminary. From the report which Dr. Maxwell made in 1828, we learn that thirteen students attended the Seminary the first year; fifteen the second, and twenty-one the third. It was resolved by the board during the second year that there should be taught English Grammar, Logic, Rhetoric, Geography, Moral and Natural Philosophy, and Euclid's Elements of Geometry, but for some reason, according to the report of Dr. Maxwell, these requirements were not taught.

John M. Harney, a young man fresh from Miami University, was elected in 1827 as a professor in pure and applied mathematics, and entered upon his duties in the autumn of that year. At the opening of the following fall and winter season, “about forty students" were in attendance, and the fame of Indiana Seminary was becoming known. Its students were beginning to assume "college airs"—they had organized a literary society—the Henodelphisterian Society—which was so classical that every student in joining was compelled to use while within its hall, instead of his own plain name, one once current in the streets of Greece or Rome.

The end of Indiana Seminary followed an inspection of the Seminary by a board of visitors, on the first of November, 1827. It was the duty of the board to examine every student in all the branches. It is said that the visitors went away charmed with what they had seen and heard and that the subsequent messages and reports made at the General Assembly recommended that the Seminary be raised to the dignity of a college. With that end in view, a bill was prepared which was in time passed and signed by Governor James B. Ray, and on January 24, 1828, Indiana Seminary became Indiana College.

The period of the Seminary had gone—at best it was only a make-shift. In the beginning, the Indiana Fathers had no thought of a State Seminary, nor of a State College, but had hoped for nothing short of a university. The State College was to be but a temporary expedient—a stepping stone to the more pretentious university promised by the Constitution of 1816. “Found the college first, with a professor of mathematics and natural philosophy, a professor of geography,—ancient and modern, and of astronomy; and one of Latin, Greek and Hebrew languages, with one or more assistants, and then, as the available funds increase, add to it a professor of theology, a professor of law, and a medical school; and lo! you have the University the fathers had in mind”.

Excepting its boards of trustees and visitors, the College inherited all there was of the State Seminary—its buildings, its students, its reputation, its property, its professors, its methods. The act of incorporation established a college professedly for “the education of youth in the American, learned and foreign languages, the useful arts, sciences and literature, and that no teacher shall be required by the board to profess any religious opinions and that no student shall be denied admission or refused any of the privileges, honors or degrees of the College on account of the religious opinions he may entertain, nor shall any sectarian tenets or principles be taught by any president, professor, tutor or instructor.”

UNIVERSITY BUILDING, ERECTED 1873

At the time the Seminary was conferred into a college, the population of the state had increased to not less than 300,000 and twenty-two new counties had been added to the map. The population of Monroe County was about 4,600 and of Bloomington about 600, but the town was still in the woods, with its few business houses confined to the west side and the west half of the public square.

Of Indiana College, Dr. Maxwell stated that the endowment was "nearly $40,000", and brought an income which was estimated at something like $2,000. There were two buildings, one built for a professor's residence, and the other a plain brick rectangular structure two stories high, containing six rooms, one of which was the chapel and another the Henedelphisterian Society room, leaving four rooms for recitation purposes. To this must be added the thirty-five students that Dr. Maxwell says there were in attendance, most of whom were in the preparatory department, and "none of whom, except in one or two branches, had advanced beyond the studies usually pursued in the freshman class, and you have the warp and woof of the Indiana College the first year of its existence".

Outside was the campus, containing ten acres, inclosed with a worm fence, and surrounded on at least three sides with walls of living trees. On the town side, the ax-men had been at work, but it was not until many years afterwards that the forest trees lining College Avenue between the town and the College were cut down.

DR. ANDREW WYLIE

The Rev. Andrew Wylie, then the president of Washington College in Western Pennsylvania, and just thirty-seven years of age, was elected president of Indiana College by the board of trustees. This choice was made in May, 1823, but it was not until March 20, ten months following his election, that Dr. Wylie decided to accept the Indiana call. Late in the afternoon of October 9, 1829, Dr. Wylie arrived with his family in Bloomington, prepared to take up his duties as president of Indiana College.

During the twenty-two months that intervened between the chartering of the College and the arrival of the president, no change was made in the curriculum of studies. The work continued to be carried on in all respects the same as during the Seminary days, and the thirty-five students had dwindled to twenty-four. Meanwhile, the trustees had been at work erecting a large three-storied brick building, a rectangular structure with many windows, with a deck roof and a pepper box cupola, and resembling more, according to Dr. Wylie, "A New England cotton-mill than a college". This building was burned in the spring of 1854.

AN OLD CAMPUS PATH

The first thing to be done after the inauguration of Dr. Wylie as president on October 28, was the announcement of a complete curriculum of studies. Great stress was given to the languages, mathematics, the mental and moral sciences, and to belles lettres. Inasmuch as there was no apparatus of any kind and no experimental work of any sort done, the scientific instruction given at that time was exceedingly meager.

Following the coming of President Wylie, the thirty students entering college in 1829 grew to fifty-nine at the beginning of the following year. Three students took their degrees at the first commencement in 1830, and by the end of the same year the enrollment had increased to sixty, four of whom took their degrees at the second commencement. The next year, (1831-32) the number enrolled was fifty-three, and in 1832-33 there were sixty-five students.

The College prospered, its reputation spread abroad, and its classrooms were filled with students from almost every state in the West and the South. At the opening of the fall term in 1830, it became necessary to establish a preparatory department which continued down to the close of 1890, a period of sixty years. During the period of the College, Beaumont Parks and Ebenezer N. Elliot were elected to the chairs of languages and mathematics and natural philosophy, respectively. Professor Parks is remembered as much for his eccentricities as his learning. In the middle of a recitation, without a word of warning, he would spring to his feet with the announcement that he must go home and kill a chicken for dinner; and off he would go, not to return till the next day.

In the legislative year 1837-38, the corporate life of Indiana College ends and that of Indiana University begins. In December, 1837, Governor Noble, in his annual message, after paying a high tribute of praise to the thoroughness and effectiveness of the academic work which the College had already done, declared "this to be a propitious time for carrying into effect the constitution of Indiana with regard to the establishing of a State University", and concluded by recommending that the College have bestowed on it that distinction together with the necessary endowment. On February 13, 1838, by a vote of the General Assembly, the Indiana College was thus transformed into Indiana University.

THE SUN DIAL

THE LIBRARY

At the time Indiana University was legislated into being, the annual income of the institution from all sources was less than $5,000, and this was thought by most persons of the State to be an adequate income for the support of either college or university.

Shortly after the creation of the University, the Law School was added to the course of instruction, and David McDonald, in December, 1842, read the first law lecture to the students enrolled in that course.

The change from college to university was not followed by the revival of fortunes that was at first expected. The number of students dropped from eighty-nine to fifty-two in the four college classes and twenty-seven in the preparatory classes, and in the year following, 1840, the total number was as low as sixty-four. After this lowest point of depression, growth came slow, but steady. The faculty chairs were filled, the Law School was added, and (by 1846) 198 names of students appeared on the catalog. From this time until Dr. Wylie's death in 1851, the enrollment never fell below 163.

Following the death of Dr. Wylie, the first president of the University, came the burning of the main University building in April, 1854, the loss in number of students at the outbreak of the Civil War, the admission of the first woman, Miss Sarah Parke Morrison, as a student in Indiana University at a time when no other state university had adopted a system of co-education, the termination of the Indiana Medical College, 1876, and the discontinuing of the Law School in 1877, after an honorable existence of thirty-five years.

For the third time, in 1833, the University again suffered a loss from fire, Science Hall, with practically all its contents—the library of 13,000 volumes, the apparatus of the various departments and the private collections of Dr. David Starr Jordan, was destroyed. With $20,000 insurance money and the liberal donation of $50,000, given by Monroe county, the University was moved from the old site to the south of Bloomington to its present site, then called Dunn's Meadow, "a beautiful tract of land lying on the east edge of the town". The erection of buildings was begun in 1884 and the corner stone was laid on June 10 of the same year. The following year the buildings on the new campus were ready for occupation—Owen Hall, Wylie Hall, and a frame chapel, called Mitchell Hall. In 1890 was erected the present Maxwell Hall, then used for the library and the administration offices.

The University moved into its new home under the presidency of Dr. David Starr Jordan. During his administration the Law School was re-established, since which time it has made continual progress as one of the schools of the University. Dr. Jordan resigned the presidency in 1891, but the spirit of instruction in a university by investigation has ever since been followed in the curriculum of Indiana.

ALONG THE ROW

As the University prospered in number of students, there were added on the campus additional buildings. During the presidency of Dr. Joseph Swain (1893-1902) Kirkwood Hall, a large heating plant and Science Hall were built and the money for the Student Building was raised. The attendance rose in this period from 638 to 1,285. In 1902, President Swain was elected to the presidency of Swarthmore college, Pennsylvania, and Dr. William Lowe Bryan, now president of the University, succeeded him.

The spirit of President Bryan's administration, set forth in his inaugural address, of giving to the people of the State wide paths to the highest and best things which men can achieve, to make such paths open to the poorest and lead to the highest, has synchronized the last eighteen years of the University.

The attendance has increased from 1,285 to 3,210, the Summer School has changed from a private enterprise to a part of the regular university work, reaching in 1919 an enrollment of 1,391, the Medical School was organized in 1903 and in 1908 united with the Indiana University of Medicine, the Graduate School was organized in 1904, the Student Building was erected in 1904, the new Library building completed, Biology Hall, Men's Gymnasium and the new Medical building at Indianapolis have been added, the tax levy increased to four and four-fifths cents on the hundred dollars, forty-seven acres have been added to the campus, making a total of 118 acres, and numerous gifts from friends and alumni of the University have been received.

The World War, while it took away much of the vigor of the University for a while, nevertheless developed in those who had to stay in college, latent talents and responsibilities. Thus, much of the idleness passed away. And with the end of the War came a revival of Indiana Spirit. Students, alumni and friends are working seriously and earnestly for the betterment of Indiana. Nothing can answer this Spirit but success. Plans are well under way for a Women's Building. Housing conditions for girls have been improved and an entirely new system is to be adopted at the beginning of next year. Scholarship is emphasized, and athletic training, that important factor both to mind and to health, is better supported than ever before. Indiana has outgrown far indeed what people once termed her country ways. She takes her place proudly among the great schools of America, knowing that she has won the right to that place, by steady growth and struggle.

These are the physical accomplishments of the University during the administration of President Bryan. Her students and alumni and friends today celebrate the centennial of Indiana University. And as the historic Jordan river cuts its way through what is left of Dunn's Meadow, and the sun dial, now many years old, gathers the sun's rays, there is a preparation for a greater Indiana University—the dream of our Paternal Fathers who a century ago, founded the State Seminary “on a beautiful eminence to the south of Bloomington beside an excellent spring of water”, and made firm the beginning of a State school in the belief that “it shall be the duty of the State to provide by law for a general system of education ascending in a regular graduation from township schools to a State University, wherein tuition shall be gratis and equally open to all”.

INDIANA'S BIRTHDAY PARTY

Indiana University had passed ninety-nine birthdays and the Ceremonial Birthday Party on the twentieth of January 1920, marked the hundredth anniversary of her founding. The eve of the twentieth was celebrated by an informal dinner at which the students, faculty, alumni and friends of the University became acquainted and renewed old acquaintances.

Tuesday dawned with a spirit of holiday prevailing; all classes were dismissed to do honor to the Centennial. As the hour of the ceremony approached, the Chimes played the Hymn to Indiana. The academic procession led by President Bryan, the Governor of the State, the Speaker of the Day, the Board of Visitors, the Board of Trustees, and the faculty filed into Assembly Hall in time to the University March. While the chorus sang the Hymn to Indiana, a tableau formed on the rear stage; America, Indiana and the University being the central figures.

As a part of the invocation, the chorus sang "The Prayer of John Chapman". This was followed by the President's address in which he introduced President Schuman of Cornell University who had as his subject, "The American University: Today and Tomorrow". At the close of the benediction, the academic procession passed out in regular order.

The afternoon was devoted to the Bryan Prize Contest speeches based on the subject of "A Solution of The American Railway Problem".

The closing feature of the Birthday Party was a University dance given in the Men's Gymnasium, where the students danced until the Chimes rang out the passing of the hundredth birthday of Indiana University.

All Indiana University helped in some way to celebrate the day which actually marked the Centennial. Up to this year, Foundation Day had meant to many people merely one day less of classes. This year it meant one day more of the Centennial Celebration, which, after all, is but a recognition of what Indiana has done and a tribute to those who helped her in her accomplishment.

CENTENNIAL WEEK

THE year of 1919-1920 has been one of preparation for Indiana University. In a quiet, general way has gone on the preparation for a Greater Indiana among alumni, officers and friends. And in a more visible manner, the arrangements for the actual Centennial Celebration have been proceeding.

Although the activities of the whole year have been tinged with the Centennial spirit, the actual Celebration does not commence on the Campus until May 30. In the evening of May 30, the Rev. Allan B. Philputt, an alumnus of the 1880 class, will give the baccalaureate address to the senior class.

All University Day, a fitting custom which was started last year, will be held on Monday. On this day, also, the seniors will find time for the class day exercises; the swing-out in caps and gowns, the peace pipe smoke, the planting of the ivy and of the class tree, and the senior play.

OWEN HALL

A CAMPUS PATH

The Centennial Pageant, on which Mr. W. C. Langdon, pageant master, has been working all winter, will be presented for the first time on Tuesday. There will be, also, alumni meetings and a baseball game. In the evening, President and Mrs. Bryan and the faculty will entertain the seniors, the alumni and their friends at a reception.

On Wednesday the Pageant will be repeated, and after this the day will be given over to class reunions and the annual alumni dinner. The R. O. T. C. units, headed by the band, will stage a formal battalion parade on Thursday. In the afternoon the Pageant will be enacted for the last time.

Commencement will be held at ten o'clock on Friday. General Leonard A. Wood will give the Commencement address. Three former presidents of the University will also be present to speak: David Starr Jordan, John M. Coulter, and Joseph Swain.

And thus end the mere plans for Indiana University's greatest week. For recording the fulfillment of these plans we leave to the next Arbutus editor.

Athletics

ANCIENT GREECE and AMERICA

It is a significant fact that the great age when Greece became the light of the world followed an age when Greece was as devoted to athletic contests as America is now. To win at one of the Olympic Games was regarded by them as the highest honor which a man could achieve. We are told that one city made a breach in its walls to readmit a returning victor. And we know that some of the poems of the mighty Pindar were written in honor of such contests and victories. It may well be that the Greeks carried athletics to an excess. Perhaps nature never does its best at anything without overflowing into some excesses. But we are warranted in believing that part of the reason why Greece then filled and still fills the world with light is because the Greek people developed the utmost physical perfection through strenuous play.

PRESIDENT WILLIAM LOWE BRYAN

THE "STIEHM" ROLLER

The ATHLETIC DEPARTMENT

E. O. STIEHM

E. O. Stiehm, Director of Athletics at Indiana University since 1916, is to continue as director over a five-year period, starting with the football season of 1920. The appointment came as a recognition of Coach Stiehm's ability and his success in building up the athletic department. Interrupted in his work by the World War, his executive ability already has succeeded in bringing order out of the chaos and in putting athletics and physical education on a solid foundation.

Athletics are going steadily forward. A greater number of students with athletic ability are entering the University each year. From a place "on the doormat" of the Conference, Indiana has a start toward the top-rung of the ladder. The climb is not founded on quick-sand, and for this organization Director Stiehm is responsible. He came to Indiana in 1916 from Nebraska University where he had wonderful success as Director of Athletics and Physical Education, and as head football and basketball coach. He is known as one of the greatest football coaches in the country. His acquisition to the Athletic Department for another period brings the prediction that the "Stiehm" roller will ride to high places in Mid-Western athletics and physical endeavor.

G. L. RATHBUN

G. L. Rathbun is head coach of Track, Wrestling and Swimming, Director of Intramural Sports and Director of Gymnastics. He came to Indiana in 1917 and coached the baseball team in 1918. He also acted as freshman football coach in 1918 and 1919. Rathbun formerly coached athletic teams for the Beatrice, Nebraska, Y. M. C. A. and High School and was one of the best known secondary coaches in the West before entering intercollegiate coaching. Coach Rathbun also is an instructor in the Department of Physical Education.

GEORGE E. SCHLAFER

G. E. Schlafer teaches Playground and Playground Methods, and supervises the training of the Corrective Gymnastic classes. Mr. Schlafer assisted in the coaching of football in 1919, and attained no small amount of success with his second-string lineup.

JESS D. FERGUSON

Jess D. Ferguson, popularly known as "Fergie", is known and liked by every athlete who has attended Indiana University in the last several years. He is the "doctor" of the department, treating the many strains and sprains which are the lot of the athlete. Ferguson, in addition to his work as trainer, coached the freshman basketball team and whipped the quintet into excellent shape.

H. B. GRAY

H. B. Gray is in charge of publicity and advertising of athletic teams and home contests.

Athletics at Indiana is under the general supervision of the Athletic Board of Control, composed of faculty members and alumni. The committee is made up of the following men: Prof. W. J. Moenkhaus, Prof. S. C. Davisson, Dean H. L. Smith, Prof. H. T. Stephenson, Coach E. O. Stiehm, H. M. Scholler, Geo. M. Cook and Frank L. Jones.

The CAPTAINS

CAPT. ROSCO MINTON

Football, 1919

Football tests men. The gruelling, smashing play, the confusion of bodies with its attendant tendency to lag back when the tide turns—all these try a man's temper. Few leaders of football teams at Indiana have stood the test better than Minton. He fought through game after game with his right knee in a cast. And he watched the Syracuse game—the final game of his career as captain—from the side lines and fought for his team as if he had been in the thick of the battle.

The CAPTAINS

CAPT. E. ARLO BYRUM

Basketball, 1919-20

Here is the big "little man" who led the Crimson basketball team of 1919-20 to the highest point ever reached in the Conference standing by an Indiana basketball quintet. The secret of his leadership lay in the power of his example—a rugged, determined style of play that reckoned not with size or weight and which knew no let-up. He was the same Byrum of old and the New Gymnasium may not see his like for many seasons. With Phillips, he made up the defensive combination that proved the most effective in the Conference.

The CAPTAINS

CAPT. HEBER WILLIAMS

Track, 1920

Williams has two athletic hobbies—basketball and track. For his ability in the latter sport, as demonstrated in his previous years in the Crimson track uniform, he was elected to lead the 1920 team. “Hebe” has the asset possessed by few athletes of ability—the silent, unbending will to do his best in every event with no expectation of the plaudits of the grandstand. The result is that his reticence reacts in his favor and he is one of the most popular athletes who ever fought under the Cream and Crimson.

The CAPTAINS

CAPT. JACK DRISCOLL

Baseball, 1920

Back some place in the dim days before the recent unpleasantness overseas, a line drive is rumored to have gone past Driscoll in left field. Only a few post-grads remember the occurrence, and Jack's work in the 1920 season demonstrated that he determined then and there that the happening should not be repeated. Jack has the faculty of leading by example, backed up by directions in no uncertain terms. The 1920 baseball season was a fitting climax to a meritorious record as one of the best outfielders the "National pastime" has developed at Indiana.

The CAPTAINS

CAPT. E. WESLEY MUMBY

Wrestling, 1919-1920

Mumby is an example of what persistency will accomplish in athletics. In 1917 Mumby was one of the stragglers who go with every athletic squad. He wrestled a little. But he determined then to make good. His persistency has been rewarded by his election as captain of the greatest wrestling team Indiana has ever produced. Those who saw him take two matches in the Purdue meet—obtaining a fall over an opponent who outweighed him by many pounds after he had won in his own match—will never forget him.

CAPT. CHARLES FOLZ

Cross Country

Few know the trials of a cross country runner. His race takes him over miles of countryside, and over obstacles which would discourage the ordinary runner. The races are finished, usually, while the spectators are primarily interested in some other sport. Little applause—and, it may be said, comparatively little credit—comes to the men. This is the record of the past, but Captain Folz of the 1919 team—leading a team beset by ill fortune—has done much to give this really great sport its deserved place at Indiana.

The GENERAL STAFF laying the battle plans

WHEN the whistle shrieked and the teams clashed on the gridiron last fall these men were on the sidelines. They were forgotten in the tumult—except, mayhap, when Stiehm paced the sidelines. Yet these were the men mainly responsible for the action of Indiana's team; these were the coaches who, through many weary, trying afternoons, taught the elementary football, the intricate plays, the thousand-and-one little tricks which go toward a football team.

E. O. Stiehm, director of Indiana athletics, and head coach of football and basketball was their leader. "Tim" Corey, who learned his football under Stiehm at Nebraska, and said to have been one of the greatest tackles who ever wore the cleated shoes, was line coach. "Cotton" Berndt, whose name is painted in big letters on Indiana's roll of athletic fame, tutored the ends and drilled the second-string players. And Rathbun developed a great Freshman team.

"Freddie" Conkle, former Crimson guard, because of matrimonial duties that afternoon did not find a place in the photograph. But he rendered invaluable service to the team in bolstering the center of the line.

UP FROM the DOORMAT

E. O. STIEHM

Winning athletic teams are not made in a single season, nor in two seasons. By their very nature, by the causes which underly all sports a team must be developed from season to season. No football player no baseball player, no track athlete can enter collegiate athletics and, in his first year, accomplish what others with longer training, greater experience and greater confidence have accomplished. This fact is patent on the face of it.

Indiana has been called "the Doormat of the Big Ten". It is true that for a number of years Indiana teams have not accomplished all that they might have accomplished in the Western Intercollegiate Conference. There has been a reason for this—the fact that Indiana high schools have not sent the material to us with which to mold good athletic teams. The coaches who have preceded me at Indiana have been confronted with the unconquerable task of, each year, building teams out of green and insufficiently seasoned material. Other Big Ten universities, meanwhile, were building teams of men of thorough experience—two-year men in intercollegiate athletics.

Moreover, some of the best athletes produced by Indiana high schools have been going—not to Indiana, not to Purdue,—but to schools outside our State. This fact came about through a number of causes, chief among which were the lack of proper alumni co-operation and Indiana's very name—"The Doormat of the Big Ten".

But there are better things in store for us. A movement is on foot to re-establish football in high schools of our state. Out of the faltering spirit in the student body has come a determined, enthusiastic, loyal spirit—a spirit which has laughed at defeat and never faltered. And I sincerely believe that Indiana's alumni are giving and will continue to give the most loyal and effective support possible. Their unswerving support of the football team was one of the finest exhibitions of true loyalty and love for Alma Mater I have ever seen in all my days of coaching.

Under these new conditions we cannot but succeed. We have passed over the Great Divide which, all these years, has separated us from the victories which our great university merits. Before us lie the paths of victory and Indiana will not—she shall not—falter.

"The Doormat of the Big Ten", they call her. There are doormats—and doormats!

The VARSITY

“They would not quit”.

This tribute paid by an Indiana alumnus best describes the 1919 football team.

Defeated in the Centre College game in the last two minutes of play, defeated by Minnesota and Notre Dame, defeated by Northwestern in the final seconds, this group of players never faltered and finally fought their way to a glorious victory over Syracuse.

Four players—Bowser, Wiley, Hiatt, and Pope—are lost through graduation. Otherwise, the team will be preserved for 1920.

A REVIEW of the SEASON

FOOTBALL at Indiana in the season of 1919 was the plaything of Fate, a season of reverses and last-minute defeats; of an undaunted fight against superior weight and greater experience; and, finally, of glorious victory.

On paper, the record is anything but a record of success—defeats at the hands of Centre, Minnesota, Notre Dame and Northwestern, a place at the bottom of the Conference standing with defeats in both of the two Conference games scheduled. True, Indiana scored seventy points to her opponents' sixty-four but forty-four of the Crimson's seventy were scored in minor games.

But the record "on paper" is apt to be misleading. It does not tell of the disqualification, on the eve of the season's opening, of Capt.-elect James Ingles; of the heart-breaking defeat by Centre College a team which afterward was to go to the very forefront of the country's gridiron teams; the brave fight of the Crimson against Minnesota and Notre Dame at Indianapolis; the twist of ill-fortune which gave Northwestern a victory when Indiana had played a vastly better game; nor the grim determined stand in the face of almost insurmountable odds in the game which resulted in the defeat of Syracuse in the final game of the season. Nor does it tell of the remarkable revival of spirit among the students and alumni; the unprecedented support of an athletic team when it seemed marked by defeat in the Homecoming's Pow-Wow; nor the resultant Committee of Seventeen which will give to the Crimson an organized alumni co-operation such as it has not known heretofore.

All these things, however, marked the season as one of the most remarkable in Indiana's gridiron history. Only eight "I" men answered Coach "Jumbo" Stiehms' call in early September. The remainder of the squad of thirty-two was composed of players with little or no previous experience in intercollegiate football. Out of this squad, Coach Stiehms and his assistants fashioned a team which—unwieldy at first—developed rapidly, made a creditable showing against the teams of greater weight and experience, and showed super-man power and ability as the season closed.

Bowser, Wiley and Hiatt of the 1919 team are to be graduated in June. Pope was graduated in February. Their loss will be a blow to the Crimson's prospects for 1920, but not an insurmountable one. Veterans of other years plan to return to Indiana, and, with the excellent material of the 1919 Freshman eleven, will give the Crimson a team such as it has not had in a number of years.

LITTLE GIANTS PRY OFF LID

Indiana 20, Wabash 7

September 27

Wabash opened the season at Bloomington on September 27. The Little Giants, trained to the minute in preparation for an early-season victory over the Crimson, fought the undertrained Indiana team to a standstill for three quarters. Then, with the score 7 to 6, Williams returned to the fray, the Stiehm machine started to work with overpowering force, and Indiana emerged victorious, 20 to 7.

Mathys opened the scoring for Indiana in the first quarter with a drop-kick from the fifteen-yard line. He repeated in the second quarter with a sensational boot from the forty-five yard chalk mark. Then Wabash pushed Nabor over for a touchdown and kicked goal. Fighting desperately in the third period, Indiana was unable to score. Williams, injured in the opening period, went back into the game in the fourth, and, after a series of end runs and line-bucks, went over for a touchdown. Williams plunged through the line for a second marker. Mathys kicked both goals.

Summer weather ruled that day. "Jess" Ferguson, with his water bottle was the most popular man on the field.

THE HEART-BREAKER

Indiana 3, Centre College 12

October 4

Out of the little Centre College, Bloomington on was destined to gridiron season in football teams in Through three try the Crimson tuckians to a stand practically four

Crimson fans sat through a driving rain and fought side by side with the team. But Indiana was not to win. With two minutes to go and with the Crimson still in the lead, 3 to 0, Centre scored two touchdowns and won, 12 to 3. A mighty sob went up from the wet, bedraggled student body as victory was snatched from Indiana's grasp. The game has gone down in Indiana's football history as "The Heartbreaker".

Mathys scored first, kicking the solid, soggy ball between the goal posts from the twenty-five yard line. Through the quagmire of mud, the battle raged far up and down the field, with Indiana carrying the fight to her opponents. With two minutes remaining, Coach Stiehm sent in substitutes to replace five exhausted Crimson players. The substitution seemed to turn the tide. A forward pass, McMillan to Armstrong, was successful and Roberts, Centre fullback, plunged over for a touchdown. Still fighting, McMillan, who later was to be named on All-American teams, intercepted an Indiana forward pass and raced twenty-five yards for a second score.

The spirit displayed at this game was second to none in Indiana's gridiron history.

Andy Gill's much-touted Kentucky State team gave Indiana the easiest game of the season. The final score was 24 to 0. Williams' forty yard run for a touchdown in the first quarter and Mathys 42-yard field goal were the features of the game—played in a veritable sea of mud and water.

Williams splattered through forty-yards of Kentucky gumbo for the first touchdown and Mathys made his wonderful kick in the second quarter. John Kyle recovered a fumble and ran fifteen yards for the second touchdown in the third quarter. Minton blocked a Wildcat attempted kick and Pope fell on the ball behind the Kentucky goal line. Mathys kicked all three goals.

GOPHERS SHIFT TO VICTORY

Indiana 6, Minnesota 20

October 18

Minnesota's Northmen met the fighting Crimson at Indianapolis on October 18 and shifted and plunged their way to a 20 to 6 victory. The shift plays cut through the Indiana line—a line broken by injury—for three touchdowns. Outweighed and outexperienced, the Crimson fought nobly, but the Gophers were not to be denied.

Here Minnesota assumed the offensive. The Gopher backs tore through for consistent gains and three touchdowns.

Indiana 3, Notre Dame 16

November 1

Over a field ankle-deep in mud and water, Notre Dame and Indiana again met on the gridiron at Washington Park. The Crimson staged one of the gamest fights in the history of football in this state. But Rockne's men, working like an Allied tank in Flander's mud, hurled back the strong Crimson defense, scored two touchdowns and a field goal, and won, 16 to 3. Risley made Indiana's only score in the last period when he negotiated a kick from placement.

Every Indiana player played well that day. The tightening of the Crimson defense, which later was to enable Indiana to thrown back Syracuse, was evident. The game resolved itself into a proposition of experience, and the more experienced team won.

Fate and Northwestern met Indiana's defeated, but undaunted football team at Evanston on November 15th. Time after time the Crimson took the ball to the shadow of the Northwestern goal. And then, with Indiana two points in the lead as a result of a safety in the first quarter, Fate intervened and Daley kicked a goal from the field two minutes before the end.

The Crimson started the scoring in the first quarter when McCaw broke through the Purple line and blocked a punt. Brightmire, for Northwestern, was tackled for a safety. Northwestern staged a comeback in the last quarter and carried the ball to Indiana's twenty-five yard line. The Crimson line held fast and the spectators started to leave their seats. Daley, for Northwestern, put through a field goal for three points and a victory.

JUST IN TIME! MINTON STARTING LONG FORWARD PASS IN NOTRE DAME GAME

—AND THEN A GLORIOUS VICTORY

Indiana 12, Syracuse 6

November 22

When Syracuse, "champions of the East", trotted onto Jordan Field, the great crowd of alumni and students, loyal in spite of defeat, hoped against hope for a "low score". Two hours later, this same monster crowd broke down the fences around Jordan Field, carried the victorious Indiana team off the field, and watched the vaunted Syracuse team troop off, defeated. The final score was 12 to 6.

The Crimson was desperate that day. The Homecoming's Wow-Wow had been held the night before. Every man on the team was conscious of the heartfelt faith of alumni and student body in its powers—even though defeat had been its lot in four of the six previous games. To those who saw the eleven braves fight that day—fight against superior experience and overwhelming prestige—it seemed that Indiana was inspired—an inspiration which foreshadowed the dawn of a new era in Indiana athletics.

Syracuse was defeated in the first two periods. The overwhelming force of the Crimson attack shattered the Syracuse resistance and disconcerted its offense. With the ball on the Syracuse forty-five yard line in the opening period, Williams hurled a forward pass to Donovan who ran thirty yards for a touchdown. The goal was missed. Risley, playing at left-tackle, then kicked a goal from placement from the Orange twenty-two yard line. Risley repeated in the second period with a place-kick from the Syracuse twenty-five yard line. The Crimson attack in the first half was not to be stopped and the Indiana backs tore through the Syracuse line almost at will. Syracuse fought with every ounce of its power in the third quarter and rushed the ball to Indiana's eighty-yard line where, after three attempts on line bucks without gain, a short pass to Malone gave it a touchdown. The goal was missed. In the fourth quarter, the desperate Easterners opened up with a great array of forward passes, and were advancing toward the Indiana goal in the last minute of play. Just as the final whistles blew, Pope gathered a wayward pass into his arms. Then—

"Tonight, Bloomington, a quiet little country town of 15,000 persons, has gone into an ecstasy of delight, one such as comes but once in a decade.

"The University band is marching the streets, hundreds of Hoosier supporters, thrown into a bedlam of excitement, are thronging the center of the little city, and all Bloomington is sweetly tasting the fruits of what is regarded as Indiana's greatest football accomplishment".

The VICTORY BALL

—OTHERWISE THE BLANKET HOP

Syracuse fell before Indiana in late afternoon. Forthwith, the thousands of alumni and students who thronged the University that day—to use the word of the newspapers—"went wild". They were in a festive mood. The annual "Blanket Hop" of Sigma Delta Chi, honorary journalistic fraternity, furnished the means for the celebration.

Eight hundred persons crowded the gayly decorated gymnasium. It was the greatest dance in the history of the University, celebrating the greatest athletic victory an Indiana team has ever achieved.

Twelve football "I" blankets were purchased with the proceeds. A check for two hundred dollars was presented by the Sigma Delta Chi as a part of the program which preceded the Purdue basketball game.

GREATER INDIANA MOVEMENT

By A. G. MESSICK, '12

The Greater Indiana Movement was launched the evening before the memorable Syracuse victory. A monster banquet was held and the athletic career of Indiana University underwent a startling change, Indiana ceased to be the "doormat of the Conference" and resumed her rightful place as one of the leaders in the West. A spirit of "Indiana shall win" was born, and the next afternoon the varsity triumphed over Syracuse. The mental attitude underwent a complete change. Since then, Indiana has been winning victories with startling regularity. The basis of the movement was: everybody pull together for a greater Indiana. Small, petty factional differences were brushed aside—and everybody took off his coat in an earnest effort to render the University a real service.

This movement is not confined merely to athletics, but it has been directed to the following concrete propositions:

1. The establishment of a School of Commerce and Finance.
2. The creating of the proper sentiment in favor of education and Indiana University, in order that education and Indiana University might be adequately financed.
3. To boost the Centennial.
4. The placing of the athletic department on a firm basis.

Thru this movement the School of Commerce and Finance has been ordered established by the Board of Trustees. This committee has been instrumental thru its subcommittee of which Linneas Hines is chairman, in arousing the strong sentiment in behalf of increased teachers salaries and properly financing educational institutions. The Centennial will speak for itself. Through this committee Coach Ewald Stiehm, the best coach in the West, was signed for a five-year contract.

This movement has been financed by unselfish Indiana alumni, who feel that every Indiana man should do his utmost to place Indiana University where she belongs as the leading University in the West. The slogan is "Everything is incidental to the University—the University must come first".

The Original Committee of Seventeen has developed into a much larger organization. The various committees follow:

The CRIMSON PLAYERS

HAROLD J. BOWSER. "Bowz" was neither the largest nor the smallest man on the Crimson. But he was mighty. His smashing line plunges never failed to gain. In those hushed moments when everything depended upon a few feet or yards gained, it was usually this "little giant" who carried the ball. Northwestern and Syracuse were his best games. Position: Halfback. Home: Syracuse, Indiana. This was Bowser's last year.

SPENCER G. POPE. "Spence" returned from the army last fall and couldn't resist the call of the Jordan. He was a veteran of the 1916 and 1917 teams. Pope proved one of Indiana's greatest assets, both on offense and defense. Seldom did an opposing team outwit or outfight him. Minnesota found his side of the line invincible and his work in the Syracuse game brought the stands to their feet time after time. Position: End. Home: Indianapolis, Indiana. The Syracuse game marked the end of Pope's athletic career.

CHESTER E. WILEY. Veterans have a big call upon them. Often, they do not make good. But Wiley, veteran of the 1915 and 1916 teams, came back to Indiana last September and made good, notwithstanding his long absence from the game. Many an opposing line plunge was broken up on the unyielding bulk of "Chesser". Wiley played in practically every game of the season and showed exceptional ability against Minnesota and Kentucky. Position: Guard. Home: St. Paul, Indiana. Wiley, too, has met the line-rush for the last time.

E. WESLEY MUMBY. Mumby has been a wrestler; his football experience had been limited. When "Ted" came onto the field last September, few believed he would develop into one of the very best men in the Crimson lineup. Yet, weighing only one hundred sixty-five pounds, he fought his way to a regular position at guard. Alexander, All-American Guard for Syracuse, said that Mumby is "the biggest little-man in the country". Syracuse was his best game. Position: Guard. Home: Mishawaka, Indiana. Ted has another season.

FRANK F. FAUST. Back in 1917, Faust did good work as quarterback. Those who saw the Ohio State game at Indianapolis will remember his dashing play after Cravens had fought until he was exhausted. With Mathys out of the game with an injured leg on the eve, of the Syracuse game, Faust came forward. He ran the team that day in a way that presages great things for the future. Position: Quarterback. Home: Covington, Indiana. Faust, too, has another year.

PHARES G. HIATT. The team possessed no player who worked harder or more faithfully than did Hiatt. Comparatively small, Hiatt side-stepped and twisted his way for many a gain during the season. His play in the Centre College game stamped him not only a great half-back, but a sportsman. And in spite of temporary reverses, he never quit. The 1919 season was Hiatt's third. Position: Halfback. Home: Richmond.

ROSCO MINTON. Here was a leader who inspired confidence in his men by the force of example. "Cow's" playing at end was a big factor in the Crimson defensive play. From Minton's huge palm went many a phenomenal pass. His loping, determined drives around end were responsible for many Indiana gains. Minton's best games were Centre College and Minnesota. Position: End and Fullback. Home: New Albany, Indiana, and "Texas, suh!" "Cow's" battle cry "Hol 'er, Nute", again will be heard on Jordan Field in 1920.

JAMES H. PIERCE. When the university opened in 1916, a strapping youth of some two hundred and twenty pounds, was among the Freshmen. He played a great game on the yearling team that year and has played a great game ever since. He was a bulwark of strength in the center of Indiana's line in 1919. Few centers could withstand the all-powerful charge of Pierce and fewer still wished to try again after attempting it. Pierce played his best games against Notre Dame and Syracuse. Position: Center. Home: Freedom, Indiana. "Babe has another year.

ELLIOTT C. RISLEY. The story of Risley brings back memories of the standard college novel. Risley returned to the university just before the Centre game, and entered the Minnesota game with only a few days practice. His subsequent playing—his wonderful games against Notre Dame, his veteran fight against Northwestern, and his tackle-around drives against Syracuse which played so important a part in winning that game—have gone down on Indiana athletic history. Position: Tackle. Home: Compton, Illinois. "Riz" will lead the 1920 team.

WILLIAM G. McCAW. When Englewood High School at Chicago interested William McCaw in football, it earned a place of gratitude in the hearts of Indiana university football fans. McCaw played guard with the ability of a veteran. His ability to solve opponents' plays and shatter the formations before they had fairly formed, attracted the attention of the Conference and caused his selection by Eckersall on the first All-Conference eleven. Position: Guard. Home: Chicago, Illinois. "Mac" will play in 1920.

HARRY W. DONOVAN. It is early afternoon. Hundreds of football enthusiasts fill the stands. Two great teams are struggling in the center of the field. A pass, a crimson-streak and Donovan goes over. Pandemonium! The fans who saw "Pat" cross the Syracuse goal line for a touchdown will never forget him. Neither will any of Indiana's 1919 opponents. Position: End. Home: South Bend. Donovan's playing through the season was of a kind that will make him invaluable for the 1920 eleven.

RUSSELL S. WILLIAMS. It is not often that a football player, a member of a Varsity team for the first year—plays through the season and earns a place for himself in the Western Conference. Yet this is the record of Russell Williams. Playing in practically every game of the season, Williams was probably the main cog in the Crimson offensive machine. After the Syracuse game, the glories of Eastern universities were planted before William's eyes, but—to use his own words—"my home state University is my Alma Mater". Position: Halfback. Home: Sheridan, Indiana.

CHARLES P. MATHYS. The name of Mathys already has gone down in Crimson gridiron history as "the greatest kicker in all Indiana football". His drop-kicking was on the sensational order. Distance, and time—whether the footing was solid or a quagmire—made little difference to Mathys. Moreover, his generalship was that of a three-year man, although Mathys was playing his first Varsity football. Minnesota and Centre were his best games. Position: Quarterback. Home: Green Bay, Wisconsin. "Chic" has one year more.

JOHN E. LEONARD. Those who watched Indiana in action in 1919 when Indiana had the ball, were aware of the fact that very few opponents straggled past a certain gentlemen of massive proportions who held forth at tackle. Leonard was a tower of strength in the Indiana line. He played in every game, and his undaunted optimism and eternal fight were big factors in maintaining the Crimson morale when adversity hit the team. Leonard's best games were Northwestern and Syracuse. Position: Tackle. Home: Chicago, Illinois. Leonard maintains that the season of 1920 will see him "here and fighting,—son"!

JOHN W. KYLE. Kyle had a man's-size job in 1919 as fullback and he filled it in a man-sized way. His crashes through the line often gave the Crimson the yards it needed. He was one of the surest tacklers on the team and played a big part in stopping the concentrated, powerful attack of Minnesota and Notre Dame. Kyle punted well, too. He played a great game against Northwestern but received injuries which kept him out of the Syracuse fray. Position: Fullback. Home: Gary, Indiana. John has two years more.

JESSE D. LOHREI. There was no harder worker on the 1919 squad than Jesse Lohrei. Through the early season he worked at center and guard and showed ability to solve the opponents' attack and stop it when it sought the vital point in the Crimson line. He played for part of each of the 1919 frays and showed ever-increasing prowess in each succeeding game. Position: Center of Guard. Home: Goshen, Indiana. "Jess" has another year under Indiana colors.

BEN A. ROSS. When the backfield "wasn't working right" at mid-season, and Coach Stiehm cast about for some way to remedy it, he found "Bennie" Ross. And Ross more than fulfilled expectations. He played well against Notre Dame and wound up the season with driving holes through the supposedly invincible Syracuse line. Ross hits like a pile driver when bucking the line, notwithstanding his light weight. Position: Fullback. Home: Evansville. "Bennie" will play for the Crimson again in 1920.

VERN S. BELL. Here is the man who played only a few minutes all season long—that is, prior to the Syracuse game. Then, when a mob of Orange tacklers bore down on Donovan after he had crossed the line for a touchdown, and smashed up parts of Donovan's anatomy, Bell was put into the line-up. He played like a veteran,—intercepting forward passes, downing runners in their tracks, and more than holding his own on the offensive. Bell has two more years on the gridiron and probably will prove invaluable in 1920. Position: End. Home: Bloomington, Indiana.

For the first time in several years, Indiana players were selected as members of the mythical "All-Conference Elevens." William G. McCaw was selected for a position at guard on Eckersall's first team and Russell Williams was chosen as a halfback in the second lineup.

McCaw's consistent work and his wonderful playing in the Northwestern game attracted the attention of all football critics in the Middle West. Williams' great work in the Indiana backfield in practically all of the Crimson's 1919 games made him one of the most likely bidders for gridiron fame in 1920.

Both McCaw and Williams were playing their first year of Varsity football. This adds especial distinction to their selection.

YEARLING FOOTBALL

TOP ROW—Nickelson, Cochran, Hanan, Smith, Byrum, Thomas, Moore, Hallam, Shonkweiler.

THIRD ROW—Walker, Loudermilk, Zaiser, Martin, France, Hughes, Hill, Goodman (Capt.), Raymond, Coach Rathbun.

SECOND ROW—Wicherman, Brunner, Young, Matthews, Flemming, Beardsley, Washburn, Bertels, Cox.

BOTTOM ROW—Little, Newby, Ickes, Merica, Hammond, McCool, Kurman, Murray.

YEARLINGS

Every year a squad of forty-odd Freshmen appears on Jordan Field. Five nights a week these yearlings bear the brunt of the Varsity attack. They appear in no game; their efforts go unsung. Yet they play a most important part in developing the varsity.

The 1919 Freshman squad consisted of thirty-three at the opening of the season. It was the strongest since 1916. Seventeen were awarded numerals. Of these, several have an excellent opportunity to have a place in the 1920 Varsity lineup.

—AS TO 1920

Prospects for 1920 are good,—better than that, excellent. This is due to several things:

First, veterans of other years will be with us again.

Second, there will be competition for every place on the team—a thing which has not been true before.

Third, I believe Indiana “found her feet” in football in 1919 and broke the “jinx”.

Fourth, we shall have the wholehearted support of student body and alumni.

Fifth, we have Stiehm—the best football coach in the country.

After all, you can’t beat a combination like that.

CAPT. BYRUM
Starting a long one.

TOP Row—Kyle, Dobbins, Donovan, Rhea.
MIDDLE Row—Schuler, Zeller, Esarey, Wakefield, Hauss.

The VARSITY

Generalities go wide of the mark in describing the 1919-1920 basketball team. The fact—fourth in the Western Intercollegiate Conference and deserving of higher honors—stands out above any mere lauding of their valiant effort for a championship. This team, it is safe to assert, is the best ever developed at Indiana. It is a cause for deep regret that five of the above group—Capt. Byrum, Williams, Phillips, Wakefield and Jeffries, are lost to future teams through graduation this year.

The SEASON of 1919-20

Basketball came into its own at Indiana in the season of 1919-20. The Crimson team finished the season in fourth place in the Conference standing—higher than any Indiana team had ever finished theretofore. And it was only an unexpected reversal of form—a let-down and over-confidence—which kept the Cream and Crimson from its deserved position of third among the Big Ten.

Veterans of former years made up the squad which reported to Coach Stiehm at the close of the football season. There was Dean at center, Jeffries, Schuler and Williams at forwards, and Phillips and Byrum at guards. Almost any basketball critic—knowing the record of these men in 1917-1918 and 1919 seasons, would have painted a great future for the quintet. And the season which followed bore out such dreams.

The season opened at Bloomington with an easy victory over the North American Gymnastic Union team of Indianapolis. Hanover was trodden underfoot by the speedy Indiana offensive and lost to the Crimson, 46 to 5, in the second home game. Valparaiso was made of sterner stuff, however, and caused Byrum's men to extend themselves to win, 24 to 15. This completed the pre-Christmas schedule.

Then the Crimson went on its Christmas barnstorming tour. Coach Stiehm was confined to his bed by illness, and Phillips, veteran Indiana guard was out of the game. With the squad thus crippled, the varsity lost to Huntington Athletics on December 29, 22 to 15, and repeated by losing to the Merchants' Light and Heating Co. team at Indianapolis on December 30, in an overtime game, 33 to 28.

The team's morale was not to be shaken by these defeats, however. On the first invasion of foreign territory, the Crimson defeated Ohio Wesleyan, 38 to 21, on January 9. In the first Conference game with Ohio State on the next night, it rode over the Buckeyes in easy fashion, 22 to 11. The Michigan campaign was equally successful. In the Michigan Aggie game at East Lansing on January 16, the Crimson won out, 20 to 19, in the last half-minute of play and repeated the following night by completely outclassing the Michigan quintet, 22 to 9.

The stage was set for a victory over Purdue on January 23. The New Gymnasium was crowded to the doors for the first athletic contest between the two state schools since the Purdue football game here in 1917. But there was to be no victory that night. The Boilermaker forwards and centers opened an offensive which Indiana could not stop and the Purdue guards regularly broke up Crimson plays. The final score was 17 to 9.

Northwestern came to Bloomington on January 31, and the Crimson, displaying a complete reversal of form, obtained an easy victory, 32 to 11.

At this point in the season, Indiana embarked upon one of the most trying trips in the history of Indiana basketball—the Nebraska-Iowa trip. The Crimson lost to Creighton in the opening game on February 4, 29 to 20, but with the regular lineup next night, triumphed over Nebraska, 24 to 20. Pointing toward the Iowa game, Coach Stiehm played the second Nebraska game with regulars out of the lineup and Indiana lost, 38 to 18. On February 7, Indiana lost her first game to Iowa in a number of years, 28 to 20.

But the Crimson was to have revenge. With the influenza ban in force and with spectators excluded from the Gymnasium, Iowa lost to the Crimson at Bloomington on February 14, 25 to 19, in an overtime game. Cincinnati proved easy, Indiana winning, 36 to 12.

Undaunted by Purdue's steady climb toward the top of the Big Ten standing, the Crimson invaded West Lafayette on February 25 with a determination to defeat the Boilermakers. And their determination carried the Crimson far. The game was close throughout. With only a few minutes to play the score was tied. But here the superiority of the Boilermakers asserted itself and Purdue won, 31 to 20.

Ohio State, much strengthened, came to Bloomington on February 28. Indiana was forced to the limit to win, 17 to 16.

It was evident that the Crimson was backsliding a little at this point, but no one expected the defeat at the hands of Northwestern on March 6, 36 to 34. The game was fought into an overtime period and therefore Indiana lost through an unfortunate and not fully explainable chain of circumstances. Had Indiana won this game, the Crimson would have finished the season in third place in the Big Ten standing.

Michigan tried to retrieve her early season defeat by Indiana in the closing game of the home season at Bloomington on March 15. She did not miss her goal far and staged a last minute drive which carried her to within one point of victory. The final score was 19 to 18, Indiana winning.

All in all, the season was successful. Greater enthusiasm and interest in basketball were displayed by the student body than ever before. New stars to take the places of those of the 1920 team who are to be graduated were developed. The 1921 season seems destined to even greater things.

Everyone who has participated in Indiana athletics in the last five years knows Jesse D. Ferguson, trainer and coach. They know and revere him and call him by the nickname, "Fergie". He is the doctor of the sprains and bruises, the first-aid physician who keeps the Crimson players on their feet when minor injuries have laid them low. But Ferguson is more than a trainer. His success with the Freshman basketball team this year and his all-round knowledge of sports cause many to feel that he will soon change his business to that of an Athletic Director.

TRAINER J. D. FERGUSON

ARDITH L. PHILLIPS, Guard. Athletes come and go and the best are not remembered for long. But Ardith Phillips will go down in Indiana basketball history as one of the best guards the Crimson ever had. He was the bulwark of the defense and played no small part in the offense. He found time to shoot sixteen goals from the field and, notwithstanding the fact that he participated in practically all the games, he committed only eight fouls. He led the team in 1918-19 and made the 'varsity in 1917-18. The 1919-20 season was Phillips' last.

EVERETTE S. DEAN, Center and Forward. Speed and almost uncanny ability to hit the basket from all angles were the factors which made Dean one of the very best forwards and centers in the Conference. Once Dean received the ball in the region of an opponent's basket, the score-keepers sought the place where goals were marked. A flash of Crimson, a stumbling attempt to guard him, and—swish! another basket,—this is the story of his twenty-eight field goals in Conference games. He made forty-one of seventy-six free throws, too. Dean will lead the team next year.

E. ARLO BYRUM, Captain, Guard. Packed into the five feet and eight inches of Byrum's stature, is the fight of a six footer and the force of a battering-ram, so Indiana's opponents found, anyway. Working with his team-mate, Phillips, Byrum was responsible in a large measure for the fact that fewer points were scored against the Crimson than against any other Conference team. His rugged determination inspired his players and he was every inch a leader. He played in 1917-18, 1918-19, and 1919-20. His dashing offensive work and great defensive playing will be missed next year.

HEBER D. WILLIAMS, Forward. For a third season, "Hebe" electrified the bleachers with his dashes down the side lines. Williams is one of the most consistent and valuable factors in the development of a unified offensive that Indiana has developed recently. He participated in eight Conference games and made eleven field goals. Williams played his first year of 'varsity basketball in 1916-1917 but did not play again until he reported last November for the 1919-20 season. He played his last game against Northwestern at Evanston.

URBAN B. JEFFRIES, Forward. Basketball players may be put into two classes—the team-workers and the scorers. Without either, a team is at a loss. Jeffries is of the former class—a player who is always in the game. Jeffries has had a fight against lack of weight—he tips the beam at 135 pounds—yet he has never faltered when facing players many pounds heavier. His teammates will not soon forget his wonderful shot from mid-floor in the Michigan Aggie game,—a goal made thirty seconds before the final gun and a goal which won the game. Jeffries played in 1917-18, 1918-19 and 1919-20. The Michigan game was his last basketball under Indiana colors.

HERMAN E. SCHULER, Forward. Squirming and twisting his way down the floor with a deceptive dribble and ten-second speed, "Dutch" Schuler caused Indiana's opponents no end of trouble. He was the same old "Dutch" whom the Crimson fans had known in 1916-17. Schuler took part in seven Conference games and played excellent basketball in all of them. He scored seven field goals, played well on the defensive, and made four fouls in Big Ten games. Schuler played with the 'varsity in 1916-17 and 1917-18. The 1919-20 season was his last.

HARRY DONOVAN, Center. Fans knew that Harry (Pat) Donovan could play football, but few knew that he was a basketball player also. Wherefore, Donovan caused a surprise when he played a very creditable game in five Conference frays. He showed great ability in anticipating his opponent's plays and in intercepting passes. He also had—for them—a discouraging way of tipping the ball in on long passes to the basket. The 1919-20 season was Donovan's first in the 'varsity uniform.

WILLIAM H. DOBBINS, Guard. Here is an example of perseverance rewarded. Dobbins reported for basketball in 1917-18; he worked like a Trojan in 1918-19. But the coveted letter was not to be his. Dobbins did not give up the fight, however, and was one of the hardest workers on the 1920 squad. "Dobbie" played a consistent game when sent into the lineup at guard. He played in six games of Conference rating, and found time, in the midst of his defensive play, to cage two field goals. He is one of the leading contenders for a regular guard position in 1920-21.

M. C. WAKEFIELD, Forward. Playing under a physical handicap which would have discouraged a less willing athlete, Wakefield fought through the 1919-20 season in a praise-worthy manner. He participated in a number of the Crimson's games—one of them of Conference calibre. Wakefield's main asset was his speed and almost super-man reverse turn, which time after time enabled him to work down the floor when opposing players had the Crimson's other players well covered. Wakefield played in 1917-18 and 1918-19 and the 1919-20 season was his last. For his faithful work "and untiring effort through three seasons", Wakefield was awarded his honor "I".

UPPER ROW—Smith, Nicholson, Raymond, Wichterman, Shirley, Dilgard.

LOWER ROW—Marxson, Thomas, Grimsley, Cox, Aldridge, Ferguson, Coach.

The FRESHMEN

When Freshmen teams form the habit of playing the Varsity to close scores, night after night, Conference champions had best look to their laurels. Yet the 1920-21 yearling squad did just that. And on one occasion, the first-year men stepped over the bounds and defeated their more experienced co-workers. Excellent material for next season's team is contained in Coach Ferguson's 1919-20 lineup.

The STATE HIGH SCHOOL BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT

For the ninth time in the history of Indiana high school basketball tournaments, Indiana University was host at the Annual State High School Basketball Tournament, March 11, 12 and 13. After a gruelling contest in which the final winner was ever in doubt, Franklin High School won out, defeating Jefferson High School of Lafayette in the finals. Twenty-six teams competed.

Hundreds of basketball fans from throughout the state made the pilgrimage to Bloomington. Fraternity houses, private residences, hotels, rooming-houses and private residences opened their doors for the guests. The competing teams were housed in fraternity houses and in the Student Building. From the moment the tournament opened until after the final game had been played, the monster gymnasium—filled in its every foot with seats—was taxed to its capacity. The attendance at the 1920 tournament broke all records.

Excitement and excellent playing marked the tournament throughout. Basketball critics said, without reservation, that it was the most successful high school tournament in the history of the high school tourneys.

“Indiana was a most hospitable host”, said one of them. “The visitors were met at the train, directed to their rooms, received information, saw the campus in personally-conducted tours, and the tournament was organized more systematically than any that preceded it”.

To the Booster’s Club is accorded the major share of credit for the successful organization and management of the tournament—a monster job. University departments, particularly the Bursar’s office and the Alumni Secretary’s forces, also were complimented for their efficient efforts.

This was the tenth tournament. Indiana will invite the Indiana High School Athletic Association to hold its 1921 tournament at Bloomington. The Board of Control of the state association in 1920 includes R. C. Johnson, Rochester, President; A. L. Trester, LaPorte, Secretary; Merle Abbot, Bedford, Treasurer; C. C. Carson, Pendleton, and James Leffel, Warsaw.

A VIEW OF THE MONSTER CROWD WATCHING STATE TOURNAMENT

DEAN SAYS—

"I believe Indiana will have a good season in 1920-21. Naturally, we are going to miss the veterans—Williams, Phillips, Byrum, Jeffries, and Wakefield. But there will remain several members of our old squad, and this year's Freshman squad will be on hand to draw from. You can't tell at this stage of the game how strong the other Conference teams will be, nor the teams which will be on our schedule. But, everything considered, the prospects look mighty good. Indiana can count on us to fight to the limit, anyway".

The VARSITY SQUAD

Since early February this squad of veteran baseball players has been at work. Even while snow still lay deep on Jordan Field, the batteries were working in the gymnasium. When spring weather came, thirty-five candidates answered Coach Scholler's call. Included in the squad's personnel are several experienced players who returned to their alma mater after having answered a greater call overseas. The squad is one of the strongest the Crimson has had in a number of years.

COACHES for LOVE of Alma Mater

COACH HARRY M. SCHOLLER

Harry Scholler, head baseball coach for 1920, is an Indiana alumnus and a former Crimson baseball star. He played as a member of the 'varsity in 1893, 1894, 1895 and 1896. After graduation, he played professional baseball before entering the lumber business, in which he has been highly successful. Scholler returned out of regard for his Alma Mater and the success of her athletic teams in the spring of 1919, and then was elected head coach of baseball. His success in this capacity has resulted in his return in 1920. He is a member of the Athletic Board of Control. Coach Scholler lives in Crawfordsville. His coaching is prompted by his love for Indiana. He receives no remuneration for his efforts.

MORDECAI BROWN, Assistant Coach

The 1920 SEASON

Baseball championships are predicted—in April—for every team from Kalamazoo to Houston, from Bangor to Pasadena. After the lilacs have bloomed awhile and the frost gets out of the ground, the championship aspirations are in most cases drowned by the April showers of defeats, failure of talent, or any one or all of the thousand and one difficulties which beset the team seeking the high pinnacle where championships and pennants bloom.

So, when the Crimson has met the Purdue nine at Lafayette on June 7th, the dreams may be shattered. But, with the season still young, there were few in Indiana University who did not believe that the baseball team of 1920 was destined for a place among the leaders of the Big Ten—if not, indeed, at the very top of the percentage table.

The hopes of early season were founded on the great array of veteran talent that reported to Coaches Scholler and Brown. Competition of the kind that makes for championships was in evidence from the first time the squad shivered on Jordan field in mid-March. Forty-three players answered the first call. By reason of the usual weeding-out process, twenty remained after the spring vacation. But the squad of twenty, according to the Indiana coaches, gave prospect, even while the season was yet young, of "giving more than the usual squad five times its size".

Practically every position was made the subject of contest by veteran players. Behind the bat Coach Scholler had Dennis and Rauschenbach; in the pitcher's box "Kay" Kunkel, captain of the 1919 team; Wooton, Jeffries, and Campbell, all members of the 1919 squad, and Walker and Kauffman, who had won numerals. Risley, captain-elect of the football team, was a candidate for first base; Dean and Hendricks for second base; Mathys for short-stop, Buttroff for third base, and Ruckelhaus for one of the infield berths. In the outfield there were Captain Driscoll, Rauschenbach, Schuler, Rust, Ferguson and Clark. Driscoll, Rauschenbach and Schuler were "I" men. It was only natural therefore, that the visions of a Big Ten championship pennant should rise in the minds of Crimson baseball enthusiasts.

The schedule was one of the hardest a Crimson team has ever been called upon to face. The list of games included ten Conference contests and eight with non-Conference teams. Two games with Purdue—one of which, was scheduled for Centennial Week—were included.

How the team went through that season is, when this sees the light of day, history. The Freshman team which reported in early April was one of the largest the University has ever seen and one of the most promising. So it is that Indiana seems destined to have other teams in the future as good as its great team of 1920.

MORDECAI BROWN, Assistant Coach

"Three Fingered Brown", they called him in the National League in years gone by when he was a leading pitcher in the majors. When Coach Scholler cast about for a player to tutor the Indiana pitchers, Brown, whose home is in Terre Haute, Indiana, was the choice. The imprint of his training of the batterymen was plainly apparent in the work of Indiana's moundsmen throughout the season.

The PLAYERS

HERMAN S. SCHULER. "Dutch" Schuler played at second base with the 'varsity in 1917. He seldom permitted a ground ball to pass him and hit the ball with abandon. Then the war took him away from Indiana. But he was back again when the first call for 1920 candidates came. Schuler's ability to cover ground and his hitting, together with the fact that there was a surplus of infield material, caused him to be shifted to the outfield. He has another season.

CHARLES P. MATHYS. "Charley" Mathys used his good right toe to advantage in the football season. But when he reported for baseball and easily took the shortstop position, he speedily demonstrated that he would reserve his kicking for the gridiron exclusively. His "peg" to first base was the joy of the coaches. The 1920 season was Mathys' first in 'varsity baseball.

JOHN C. HENDRICKS. "Jack" is a member of a family widely known for its baseball prowess, and his play this season is ample proof that none of the ability has been lost in this generation. Hendricks is a good infielder and knows every angle of the game. He was confined to the hospital during most of the 1919 season but has more than made up for his absence in this year.

GORDON S. BUTTROFF. "Mike" Buttroff appeared on Jordan Field one day in 1919 and attracted the attention of Coach Scholler by his excellent fielding of the third base position. He speedily took a regular berth on the 'varsity and only a very few drives went past him in the course of the season. He displayed equal aptitude in the 1920 season.

GORDON W. BATMAN. "Gord" played with the 'varsity at short-stop in 1918. His excellent playing in the difficult infield position and his ability to hit make him a formidable contender for a regular berth on the varsity. Batman's principal ability is his hitting. The 1920 season was his last.

LEONARD C. RUCKELSHAUS. "Ruck" was a member of the 1919 yearling team and won his numeral. His work this season at the "short field" stamp him as one of the promising candidates for a regular position on the varsity in 1921. Ruckelshaus fields his position in a veteran manner and throws well to first from any angle.

WILLIAM L. REED. Reed is a promising candidate for Indiana baseball teams of the future. He showed baseball instinct in his early workouts.

LLOYD A. RUST. "Mutt" Rust played in the outfield with the Freshman team in 1916. Then he packed his belongings and went to France with the Rainbow division. But he was back again when the first call for indoor practice was issued. He plays his position in the outfield in veteran style and hits the ball regularly. He is one of the steadiest players on the squad. Mutt has two years more.

EVERETTE S. DEAN. "Deanie" Dean packed his basketball clothes and put on his varsity baseball uniform at the opening of the season and started at once to make the seemingly impossible plays around second base for which he was known in his first year on the varsity in 1919. Dean, in addition to being a good infielder, hits the ball regularly. He has another season.

KENNETH KUNKEL. "Kay" is the veteran member of the Crimson pitching staff. His twisters fooled opposing batsmen in 1919. He led the team last year. Kunkel instills confidence in his team through his coolness and ability under fire. He is a member of the 1920 graduating class and his loss is a blow to the Crimson for 1921.

JACK DRISCOLL. Captain Driscoll won his numeral in left field in 1917. He played with the S. A. T. C. team in 1918—in left field. He was there again in 1920 and knows every inch of the territory between third base and the cinder path. In addition to his ability to stop anything in the way of a high one and spear the line drives, he has been one of the Crimson's most dependable hitters. The 1920 season was his last.

ELLIOTT C. RISLEY. "Riz" Risley's ability as a baseball player was known only to a few when he donned the varsity uniform in April. But it was known to everyone before the season was half over. His playing at first base and his hitting earned for him a position on the Crimson and he seemed destined to show as much ability as he displayed on the gridiron.

W. G. RAUSCHENBACH. "Red" is one of the veterans of the squad. He played with the Crimson varsity in 1917 and 1919 and injected "pepper" in every game in which he played. Rauschenbach's regular position is behind the bat, but he is slated for a position in the outfield this season. The 1920 season was his last.

URBAN B. JEFFRIES. "Jeff" Jeffries is a distant relative of "Jim", but his physical makeup doesn't indicate as much. Nevertheless, his fast ball has a world of "steam" behind it and he was one of the main winners among the Crimson hurlers in 1919. Jeffries puts his heart into the game and this is no small factor in his victories. He is a member of the 1920 graduating class.

JOHN H. WALKER. "Walk" Walker was a Freshman in 1919 and a member of the yearling team. On occasion, he caused the varsity batsmen to swing the air in such a futile manner that he was even then picked for a regular position on the varsity hurling staff in 1920. Walker's main asset is his speed and his ability to put the ball where he wishes.

HOBART DENNIS. "Hobbie" had the catcher's position sewed up when the season was only two week's old. He occupied this position with the 1919 team. His main assets are his ability to slam the ball into all corners of the field and a "peg" that goes down to second base on a straight line. Dennis has another year of varsity eligibility.

EWING H. CAMPBELL. "Chunk" had bad luck last season. After starting well, a succession of misfortunes prevented him from finishing. Campbell is possessed of quite a portion of avoirdupois and he omits to put none of it into every ball he starts toward the plate. He is one of the dependable members of the pitching staff and should be one of the leading Crimson hurlers in 1921.

MELVIN E. WOOTON. "Woot" Wooton hails from Gary, Indiana, which has sent a number of promising athletes to Bloomington. He pitched good baseball in 1919 and his workouts early in the season indicated the victories which were to follow. Wooton has a curve ball and a "fast one" which cause batsmen to wind into a knot. He has another year of varsity competition.

ARTHUR K. HARTZELL. "Specs" hails from Pennsylvania and pitched well at the opening of the season. But a strained tendon put him out of the running before Indiana's first Conference game. He has another year.

R. J. FERGUSON. "Heavy" Ferguson belies his name and appearance. He covers acres of ground in the outfield and on occasion hits one into the far corners of Jordan Field. Ferguson was a member of the Crimson squad for the first time in 1920 and should give an account of himself before finishing his collegiate athletic career.

1920 VARSITY TRACK SQUAD

Coach Rathbun's call for track candidates in early March was answered by the above squad. From more than one viewpoint it is one of the most formidable in the history of Indiana track and field athletics. Strong competition for each event—a thing absent in Crimson athletic teams for the last several years—was presaged.

In distances up to the half-mile event, there was a large number of contenders, but in the half-mile, mile and two-mile runs the competition was not so keen.

The SEASON of 1920

COACH G. L. RATHBUN

Predicting the results of a track season is hazardous business—especially when the candidates are shivering in the cold of a mighty chilly April afternoon. But coaches usually can tell, even then, whether a candidate will run a mile under six minutes or clear the bar in the high jump when it stands higher than four-nine.

Coach Guy L. Rathbun, wrestling, swimming and gymnastic coach has been named to pilot the 1920 Crimson track team, taking the place of Dana M. Evans who is now Director of Hygiene at Northwestern University. Coach Rathbun developed some wonderful track men and teams before coming to Indiana in 1917.

In outlining the prospects for the season Coach Rathbun does not “claim to be infallible” and admits that “a second Johnson may turn up any day”.

The VARSITY SQUAD

BY COACH G. L. RATHBUN

The list of "I" men in school this year consisted of Captain Williams, Keeling, Purcell, Phillips, Bullock and Lindsey. Main point winners for Indiana in 1919 who have been lost to the squad by graduation are Captain Mogge, Taylor, Collier, Embick, Gates, Cole and Briggs. The three leading sprinters and all of the distance men of last years team are lost for this year's team. The hurdles were well taken care of by Captain Williams and Lindsey. The jumps with Keeling, Purcell and Williams had veteran representatives. Phillips in the javelin was the only veteran weight man for this season.

Facing one of the best track schedules which this institution ever had and with eight men around whom to build up a team, the prospects for a winning team this spring were promising in spite of the lack of experienced material in most of the track events. The return of Bullock from the service gave the team a very good pole vaulter.

Of last year's freshmen, only two bright prospects were eligible for varsity competition. Russell Williams gave promise of being a consistent point-getter in the shot put and Konrad has possibilities as a 220-yard dash man. The largest track squad since 1916 reported at the call. Forty men answered during the first week of practice.. The pre-season work indicated that the following men would make positions on the varsity: Johnson, Lynas, Greer, Longsdon, Loomis, and Keeling all of whom gave promise of developing into men capable of point winners in the 100, 220 and 440-yard dashes. A host of candidates were out for the long runs and performances of merit are expected from such candidates as Hiabbe, McCaw, Shirley, Swain, Folz, Bohn, Bone, Cromer, and Clymer.

Field events aside from these mentioned found the following as likely candidates: Bohn, Corbin brothers, Frenzel, Gillespie, Warner, Sauer, Leonard, Pierce, McCaw, Hiatt and Hayes.

COACH RATHBUN, TIMING THEM!

“I” MEN in TRACK, 1920

CAPTAIN HEBER D. WILLIAMS, Hurdles, High-Jump. Williams was one of the most dependable members of the 1919 track team. He won first in the high hurdles and first in the high jump in the Ohio State meet and lost first place in the State Meet in the hurdle event by only a narrow margin. His early-season workouts showed that he was even speedier than last year. “Hebe” is competing for his last season under Crimson colors.

F. E. KEELING, Sprints, Broad-Jump. Keeling is one of the best broad jumpers Indiana has developed in years. And when he gets under way in the 100-yard dash, few men in the State can keep the pace. “Skipper’s” performance in the Conference meet at Chicago last year, when he hurdled through the air for a jump of twenty-two feet seven and one-half inches, stamped him as one who would accomplish even greater things in 1920—his last season under Indiana colors.

WILLIAM W. PURCELL, High Jump, Broad Jump. Back in 1918, Purcell demonstrated his ability in the broad-jump when he won his event easily in the Ohio State meet. His performance in 1919 was no less praiseworthy. He took second in the high-jump in the state meet. “Bill” clears the bar in perfect fashion and he is depended upon this season for the Conference meet. This is Purcell’s last year with Indiana.

ARDITH L. PHILLIPS, Field Events. Those who saw Ardith Phillips take four seconds in the Ohio State dual meet last year are of the belief that Phillips can do anything he wishes in the line of athletics. His places were distributed among the shot-put, discus, broad-jump and javelin events. His performances in other meets were almost equally meritorious. Phillips rounded out his athletic career with the close of the 1920 track season.

MAX BULLOCK, Pole Vault. When Bullock takes the vaulting pole and measures his take-off, spectators wonder how he manages to carry the "stills." But they don't wonder long. The Crimson vaulter manages to hurl his five-feet-four over the bar when it is some eleven feet or more above the sand-pit. His record season demonstrates that ability and not size go to make the winning athlete. Bullock won his letter in 1918 and he has another year.

ERMEL E. LINDSEY, Hurdles. Lindsey, a veteran of other seasons, returned to the cinder path in answer to Coach Rathbun's call. He was a member of the Freshman team in 1913, of the varsity squad in 1914 and 1916, and won his letter in 1914 when he took the high hurdles event in the Ohio State dual event. Early-season jaunts showed that he had lost none of the old knack. Lindsey will be graduated from the Law School in the June, 1920, class.

SIGMA DELTA PSI

During the year of 1912 a society which was called Sigma Delta Psi was formed at Indiana University, the purpose of which was the encouragement of comprehensive physical development and training among college students.

Little was it thought by the members who constituted this fraternity at that time that it would rise to the prominence which it now maintains in the colleges and universities throughout the United States. The fact that Sigma Delta Psi was founded at Indiana University has brought a great amount of credit and renown to the University.

There were in Indiana University on April 1, 1920 only two men who have fulfilled the requirements and become members of the fraternity. They are Heber D. Williams and Ardith L. Phillips. Try outs in the events required by the fraternity were being held throughout the spring.

CROSS COUNTRY

THE opening of the Fall Semester witnessed a rejuvenation of Cross Country at I. U. after a lapse of two years. Owing to the fact that interest in this sport had died during the year, it was quite a difficult task to start an early season. As a result, practice was delayed until just before the opening meet, October 18.

The beautiful Loving Cup awarded in the I. A. A. U. Race just preceding the Indiana-Minnesota Football game at Indianapolis on October 18, afforded a powerful stimulus to the I. U. Cross Country prospects. Despite the fact that the Cream and Crimson Runners had no practice, they finished second only to the Canoe Club aggregation in a field of five teams which competed.

In order to offer greater reward for Cross Country efforts and to stimulate some competition between individuals, an open race was run the following Saturday. This event involved the awarding of five prizes, the first of which was a beautiful loving cup. It was at this time that keen rivalry brought out some excellent material for future races.

A meet was scheduled with the Canoe Club team of Indianapolis as a "curtain-raiser" for the Indiana-Syracuse Football game on November 22. Koehring, Inter-Allied Distance champion, finished first in the meet. Even though competing with one of the fastest teams of the country, the I. U. Distance men were defeated only by the close score of 19 to 17. Had the Conference system of scoring been used in this meet, Indiana would have been declared the winner.

On Thanksgiving Day, Captain Folz took his men to the Open Meet held under the auspices of the Indianapolis Y. M. C. A. Indiana fans still contend that the Cream and Creamson greyhounds won this meet. The Canoe Club runners were awarded the cup.

The State Meet on December 6 at Wabash College, brought the season to a close. Several inches of snow put the Indiana aggregation at a disadvantage because of a lack of equipment. The loss of Campbell and Bone was also keenly felt at this meet.

All things considered, the Cross Country season was a success. The point-getters for Indiana were: Captain Folz, Swain, Bone, Shirley, Sauer, Longsdon, and "Red" Campbell. The prospects for a winning team are very bright next Fall. Only two varsity members, Folz and Bone, will be lost by graduation. It is expected that Captain-elect Swain, with the remaining varsity men and the additional Freshman material consisting of Campbell, Johnson and others, will begin with an early season with a winning team.

FRONT ROW—Feick, Keith, Captain Mumby, Coach Rathbun, J. Moore.

The WRESTLERS

CHAMPIONSHIP calibre was displayed by this wrestling squad long before the Western Intercollegiate Wrestling meet at Illinois. Six of the best teams in the Middle West went down before Coach Rathbun's men, including the supposedly invincible Iowa State grapplers who had aspirations for a national championship. V. F. Tremor, D. Keith, P. D. Moore and C. E. Wiley will be lost to the 1921 team through graduation.

WITH the WRESTLERS

Printers are stern taskmasters. Not even the prospect of a Western Inter-collegiate wrestling championship would delay their call. For, as this is written, with Iowa, Iowa State and Purdue vanquished, and with all available indications pointing toward a championship, it is only to be said that the story of the Western Meet must go until next year.

WRESTLERS

The first call brought Captain Mumby as the only veteran of the 1918-19 teams. In response to an S. O. S. a host of promising new material reported, including several who were candidates for the team seasons before the war. The competition developed the keenest in years and from a poor prospect, Indiana has developed into a Conference contender, and it is safe to predict that this will be one of the most successful wrestling seasons the Crimson has ever had. The squad, with all fighting qualities, confidence and spirit, has upheld the characteristics of Indiana's new athletic era.

The showing in meets exceeded all expected results. On the first trip the wrestlers demonstrated their superiority when they decisively defeated Iowa University which was boasting of its best team in years. The Hawkeyes were lucky to win one match, an injury to Tremor being largely responsible for the loss of the only bout by a decision after the full-time limit. Mumby, Wiley, the Moore brothers and Wise won their matches. The final score was 32-6. Hoosier stock was rising. The grapplers had visions of taking the scalps of the heretofore undefeated Iowa State College team. This aggregation known as "the Ames Cyclones" have for years been supreme in dual meet competition. With the Missouri Valley Championship won, they were after the Western Inter-Collegiate title and possibly the American, if they defeated Pennsylvania. Before one of the largest crowds ever assembled for a college wrestling meet, the Hoosier team stopped the climb of "the Ames Cyclones" and gained considerable prestige for their Alma Mater. The score was 27 to 12. It was the same team that had defeated Iowa University.

The record of the grapplers resulted in the large attendance at the wrestling meet at I. U. (When the first glimpse of the successful invaders was offered the rooters, Indiana's old rivals, the Purdue Boilermakers, were the opponents.) With John Moore and Wiley out with influenza, many questioned the outcome of the contest. With the crippled lineup the Cream and Crimson mat artists were not to be denied. Trained to perfection, they rose to the height of their power and took the Boilermakers into camp with a 38 to 0 score. The Purdue men were unable to cope with the science and strategy of Rathbun's proteges. Indiana won every match. Captain Mumby, wrestling in the light-weight class, won his match. Rather than forfeit the heavyweight match in which Indiana had no representative the plucky Captain made possible a clean sweep by winning the heavyweight match also. I. U. adherents carried the victors from the floor.

Aside from the winning of all the meets, the conduct of the wrestlers has brought much kindly comment for the athletic department. The words of an athletic director whose team had been vanquished were: "You have a fine wrestling team this year composed of real gentlemen who act like a lot of good clean sportsmen."

P. D. MOORE, Middleweight. The mental attitude of Moore was exhibited on the big western trip. The reputation accorded Ames by all Iowans only brought this comment from him: "Coach, they are not infallible". He developed into a scientific performer and won his matches in all meets. He was a Crimson wrestler before the war and gave promise then of the ability he so conclusively showed through the 1920 season—his last as a collegiate grappler.

J. I. MOORE, Welterweight. This welterweight had the fighting spirit in developing the science and confidence which made him able to throw his opponent in every meet. He was expected to win the Western Conference, but contracted pneumonia just before the Purdue Meet. John should make an enviable record for the Cream and Crimson, and I. U. adherents believe he will be a successful candidate for the American Wrestlers' team at the Olympic Meet in Belgium.

DEAN B. KEITH, Welterweight. Keith was on the wrestling squad before the War. He is a grappler with exceptional prospects, capable of defeating the average college 145-pounder. After three years of faithful work, his efforts were awarded, when, as a substitute in the Purdue meet, he won his match and letter.

W. A. WISE, Special-weight. Stiff competition marked the 125-pound class but Wise earned the right to represent the team at this weight. This was his first year on the squad and in this short period he has developed into a most consistent performer. In the Iowa and Purdue meets against experienced and highly-touted opponents, he was returned victor.

V. F. TREMOR, Lightweight. "Vic" held the edge over a host of capable candidates in the 135-pound class. Injuries kept him from exhibiting his best form in the earlier meets. In proper condition, he is as good a man as there is in the West in his class. His work in the Purdue meet stamp him as a performer of more than ordinary ability.

C. E. WILEY, Heavyweight. Wiley was one of the veterans who left school in 1917 to enter the service. He was proved a most consistent point winner in all meets and was counted upon to give a good account of himself in the Western Intercollegiate. He was then only just recovering from an attack of pneumonia. He is a heady wrestler with an indomitable spirit that characterized his participation in other branches of athletics.

INTRA-MURAL ATHLETICS

AT the close of the war a jolt was given American athletic pride. Expert coaching methods that had been conquering the world in specialized athletic competition had, nevertheless, a glaring weakness in our physical training system. The fault of our physical education methods was merely a lack of organization and system that would bring our athletic methods into more general use.

Coaches Stiehm and Rathbun began a conservative study and experiment of the program that would eventually fit in with the needs at Indiana University. This program will include an all-around program of valuable activities, with instruction in health and training, promotion of health sports, mass-athletic competition from the R. O. T. C. and the gradual development of this program. This will be under the supervision of the Intramural Committee.

During the past year much has taken place in Intramural athletics. In the basketball tournament of the fraternities, the Kappa Sigma fraternity won after a very hotly fought tournament. In swimming, more than 500 men have taken part this year and the new swimming organization, Sigma Rho Tau, bids fair to win national fame. The Inter-class Wrestling Meet was won by the Freshmen. The Freshmen also repeated their success by taking first place in the Inter-class

Swimming meet. A series of football games were played between the companies of the R. O. T. C. The Laws and Medics met on the gridiron in their annual battle, the Laws winning by a score of 12 to 0. The R. O. T. C. as a unit has been entering into mass athletics. The several public contests of the R. O. T. C. were decided successes. The company winning the largest number of points in this series of games is given some form of reward at the end of the school year. The Inter-Class Meet was held late in May. During 1919-20 the total attendance of athletic competition averaged about 13,000 a month.

With the completion of the new athletic field in sight, it is expected that when Jordan field is no longer used for university athletics that it may be turned over for intra-mural athletics. After a practical experiment, indications are that Indiana University will be one of the first to adopt a real program of intra-mural athletics for the benefit of the entire student body. This department will be in charge of Coach Rathbun, who has demonstrated the possibilities in the short time devoted to such attempts.

TENNIS

TENNIS at Indiana had never been considered in minor competitive sports prior to 1919. Although working under this handicap, the tennis team of last year had a successful season. Indiana tennis men were scheduled to participate in four meets that year, the Wabash meet, two meets with Butler, and the conference meet at Chicago. All these engagements were filled except Wabash. This meet was cancelled on account of rain.

In the two meets with Butler, the Crimson emerged victorious. At Bloomington, Bastian and Plogsterth, for Indiana, defeated Koehler and Wamsley, Butler, 6-3, 6-3, and 3-6, 6-1 and 6-4 respectively, in the singles. In the doubles, Koehler and Wamsley defeated Bastian and Kegley 6-1, 3-6, and 6-3. At Indianapolis, Indiana won. In the singles, Bastian, for the Crimson, defeated Koehler 6-2, 6-1, but Wamsley, Butler, retaliated and caused Plogsterth's downfall, 6-2 and 6-4. Bastian and Plogsterth in the doubles for I. U. retrieved by defeating Koehler and Wamsley 7-5 and 6-4.

Following this, Bastian and Plogsterth made the trip to Chicago for the Conference Meet. The men fought their way by hard and consistent effort to the semi-finals, Bastian being defeated by the winner, Westbrooke, of Michigan, after a close match.

Bastian and Plogsterth both were awarded their varsity letter for their excellent showing in the Conference meet.

This year, the new era of "Greater Indiana" was reflected in tennis in its new spirit. The men fought hard and never faltered through all their contests. Such a spirit was not to be denied.

With Captain Bastian leading, and Plogsterth, Kelso and DeMarcus in the van, Coach Stiehm had the backbone of a winning team. Captain Bastian and Plogsterth, both letter men of last year, showed true to form. Both counted in a pinch. Kelso, winner of the men's singles of the Summer School tourney of 1919, played steady, consistent, and veteran tennis all year. DeMarcus, winner of several amateur tennis meets, played varsity tennis straight through the season.

"WE WILL WIN"

THE I MEN

DISTINGUISHED service in athletics is denoted by the "I". Only those who have won for the Crimson in Conference competition or have given faithful service during three seasons are eligible to wear the letter. The award is made by the Athletic Board of Control on recommendation by E. O. Stiehm, Director of Athletics. Formal award of the letters is made in the annual banquet of "The 'I' Men of Indiana University", into which the letter wearers have been organized. A certificate of membership is issued.

SCHOOL FOR COACHES

AN innovation in general athletic training was the introduction of a training school for coaches of the State high schools, in the summer session of 1919.

The class was composed of high school coaches and those in training to become coaches. Especial emphasis was laid on making a practical and scientific basis for the training of high school athletes. This will discourage "the mushroom" type of athlete who makes a spectacular record while he is in high school, but who has been trained in the wrong manner so that he is worn out by the time he comes to college.

The class received instruction in coaching all high school sports, under the able direction of Coach Rathbun.

SIGMA Rho, Tau, honorary swimming fraternity, was founded at Indiana University, in 1919. The organization was the outgrowth of the old Dolphin Club.

Membership is based upon practical ability in swimming which is determined by the performing of prescribed requirements. The fraternity is promoting interest in other universities and colleges which will result in the organization of chapters elsewhere.

Women's Athletics

THE HISTORY OF INDIANA WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

THE James Darwin Maxwell medal stands for the goal which has come with the development of women's athletics at Indiana University—good athletics, good sportsmanship and good scholarship.

Notwithstanding the fact that the women's first gymnasium was a cellar, athletics for women thrived at this University. Physical training for women was established in 1890, but sports were not introduced until three years later, when Miss Juliette Maxwell was placed in charge of the department to fill the place left vacant by the resignation of Mrs. Harriet Saunderson, the first instructor.

At that time the gymnasium was in the south half of the basement of Wylie Hall. The basement was not improved as now, and the fumes from the chemical laboratories above were almost unbearable.

Interclass basketball was the first form of athletics that the girls had. The games were played in the cellar gymnasium where the ceilings were so low that the players could almost reach the baskets.

The building of a new gymnasium for the men which was also to serve as an auditorium gave Mitchell Hall to the girls for their physical education work. Mitchell Hall was an improvement over the basement of Wylie Hall, but difficulties were encountered there in the form of six pillars which were used for ceiling supports. Basketball had to be played slowly and cautiously to prevent any player's being injured by too hard contact with a pillar.

The lower floor of the Hall was used as a gymnasium and the upper floor contained the dressing rooms. As the halls and stairways were unheated, it was very unpleasant for the girls to use them in going to and from the gymnasium. To avoid using the cold halls, the girls had two holes cut in the ceiling. Through one hole was placed an iron pipe and through the other a perpendicular ladder. By means of these the girls passed quickly to and from gym classes.

In 1905, the department moved to its present quarters in the north wing of the Student Building. A swimming pool opened the way for a new line of competition. The tennis courts east of Mitchell Hall were also put into use.

Hockey was the next sport to be added. This came in 1911 when the girls were given permission to use Dunn Meadow as an athletic field.

The rapid growth of interest in sports naturally brought about the formation of the Women's Athletic Association. In the spring of 1913 a local association was organized with membership open to every girl on the campus. In the fall of the same year, Miss Katherine Brown arrived to take a position as instructor in the gymnasium department. She also took charge of athletics and helped to build up the Association into a strong organization. The unwieldy system of open membership gave away to the closed membership plan.

In 1917 an athletic conference of college women was held at Wisconsin University. Indiana University sent delegates to this conference at which a national organization was formed called "The Athletic Conference of American College Women". Arrangements were made for sectional and national conferences by means of which college women can be brought together to discuss problems of vital importance to women's athletics. The first national conference was held at Chicago University in the spring of 1918. To Indiana University falls the honor of the next national conference which will come in 1921.

Under the presidency of Louise Van Cleave the Association has reached its largest membership. With the growth in membership has come also an increase in activities and a development of the athletic award system. The W. A. A. vaudeville in the fall and the pageant in the spring have become traditional. The sweaters won by the girls to-day are won only after two and one-half years of participation in athletics.

Soccer is one of the two fall sports. A girl must choose between hockey and soccer, and come out for one of the two teams. If its success continues, it promises a great future for itself and for women's athletics.

Though soccer is rapidly gaining headway here, hockey is still holding its own as a favorite out-of-door game. It has been one of the principal sports for girls since its introduction here, and bids fair to continue so. For quick thinking, quicker action, and team work hockey has no equal among the out-of-door sports, and the wise girl is making the most of her opportunities in electing this branch of athletics.

THE CALL OF THE BUGLE

The Women's Athletic Association continued its annual custom of presenting a pageant every spring by producing last year "The Call of the Bugle", which was given near the end of May in a natural stage east of the Observatory.

The pageant was written by Mary Deputy, '19, and was to have been presented in the fall; however, the unsettled conditions of those days prevented its being given at that time. It was amplified and perfected during the winter months and was finally presented before an audience of well over a thousand people.

The theme of the pageant dealt with the response of Indiana University students to the call of duty during war times. The early growth of the University was interpreted by a group of skillful dancers who portrayed the trials that the University had to endure in its young days. The dancers showed that the University grew and progressed until the Civil War came. Then, at the call of the bugle summoning to arms, the students responded loyally. The late war was touched upon last. The pageant showed that when the United States called to colors, frivolity no longer had a hold on the students, the men entered military service and the women took up war tasks. The emotions that attended the great war—doubts, sorrow, distress, anger, anxiety and, finally, joy—were all expressed in dancing. The chief dancers were Helen Coblentz, Lessie Davidson, Louise Van Cleave, Luella Agger, Mary Brown, Virginia Carmichael and Carol McMath.

Those who directed the pageant were Mary Brown, dancing; Mary Deputy, presentation, and Prof. G. F. Reynolds, faculty advisor. The administrative details were taken care of by Rowena Harvey, general manager; Florence Day, publicity manager, and Anne Johnston, property manager. Miss Katherine Brown was business faculty advisor.

The setting of the pageant contributed much to its artistic success. The pageant was presented in a natural clearing with a mass of shrubbery and forest trees in the background. The weather was ideal and a brilliant sunset set off the varied colored costumes of the dancers. The costumes, both of the dancers and of the characters, were carefully selected. A committee of ten worked for several weeks on the dancers' costumes and the citizens of Bloomington and the state contributed the costumes of the old war times. The returned soldiers and sailor portrayed the part that they had actually taken in the last war.

"The Call of the Bugle" was considered so successful that another will be given this year early in May. Helen Coblentz, '19, is the author of the present pageant, which will interpret by dancing a fairy story.

THE CALL

REVIEW OF THE SEASON

The 1920 soccer season was marked from the beginning by the spirit and energy that makes sports a success. Freshmen girls were required to take either hockey or soccer. The majority chose the latter and made a goodly scene of active life while they practised in the perpetual mud of Dunn Meadow.

Soccer practice for freshmen was staged on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Owing to the rain which usually fell on these days, the practices were very few. Nevertheless, at the end of the season a team of the most capable was chosen and thrust forth against the upperclass team.

The upperclassmen had only one soccer team, and this one in common. Careful and diligent practice gave this team a self-confidence that did much toward the correctness of posture.

The soccer tournament was held in the last of November on Dunn Meadow. In spite of the mud and lack of practice the games were exciting ones in which each team made an excellent showing.

The first half ended with a score of 1 to 1. At the end of the second half the score remained the same, neither team being able to put the ball through the goal. In the five minute over-time that followed, the upperclassmen made another goal, thus winning the first game with a score of 2 to 1.

"LEST WE FORGET"

"THE WORLD IS MINE"

"LUCKY BALL!"

"STACK ARMS!"

In the second game, the upperclassmen started out with vim, and succeeded in scoring one point before the freshmen recovered from their surprise, thus making the score at the end of the first half 1 to 0. However, in the second half the freshmen came back, evening the score, and in spite of strenuous effort the upperclassmen failed to score again. Due to the rain the over-time was not played.

The 1919 hockey season began definitely when Miss Katherine Brown mustered out enough girls for an upperclass team. The freshmen had a larger number of girls from which to choose a team, but these girls were less experienced than the members of the upperclass teams.

The hockey tournament consisted of one game. The freshman team went forth with fear and trembling to meet its skilled opponent on Dunn Meadow. The upperclass team underestimated the ability of the freshmen, however, thereby nearly losing the game. The score of the first half was 0 to 0. During the second half no points were made until the last three minutes. The upperclassmen made a sensational goal after knocking down the members of the freshmen team. The freshmen attributed their loss to the fact that their captain's shoestring came untied four times. Scientists, however, have not yet been able to ascertain proof for this belief.

COMMENCEMENT

"A man that is young in years may be old in hours, if he has lost no time."

The great, the important day comes, big with the fate of many people. For some, an ultimate End has been reached; for others, merely an immediate End to a more distant one. The definiteness of that purpose is measurable by the age, not in years, of the students who have reached this commencement goal. They have read much and perhaps have seen more, but without a guiding purpose, without knowledge of life, without first-hand study and understanding of mankind, they are young still in hours.

The success or failure which will come to everyone in each graduating class will depend on the individual graduate. A benevolent fate does not await each, to smilingly dole out happiness and success; for, "They who await no gifts from chance, have conquered fate."

IN ACTION

An Arbutus editor once showed the Class Scrap in the Activities section; which was entirely fitting and proper so far as cold paper and ink can depict. The only real place to show a Class Scrap is on the future athletic field, back of the Gymnasium, the scene of the 1919-'20 fight.

The Scrap is not the most important thing about the little display of differences. The events leading up are interesting, to say the least. The Frosh-Soph Scrap of 1919-'20 was the culmination of enforced truck rides, upper-classman hold-ups and frequent free tonsorial administration. Many participants on both sides were relieved of the expense and tic-tle of barbers for the rest of the winter. Also, there was much mending of wearing apparel and skin for many days after.

The Scrap also marked the resumption of pre-war class feeling.

Oh, yes, the Frosh were victorious by a majority of one sack and three hair cuts, both shown on this page.

BRIEF HISTORY OF THE LAW SCHOOL

By an act of the Indiana General Assembly in 1816, it became possible for a law school to be provided for the State, "as soon as circumstances will permit". This was followed by a series of statutes. The statute of 1838 declared that one of the purposes for which the State University was established was the education of youth in the science of law.

Although the organization of the Law School as an integral part of the University was thus provided for early in the Constitution, it did not become a part of the institution until 1842, when it was formally opened. It is significant of the purpose of the founders that the official announcement of the opening set forth the purpose of the trustees as "nothing less than the upbuilding of a law school that shall be inferior to none west of the mountains, one in which students shall be so trained that they shall never, in the attorney, forget the scholar and the gentleman". Therefore, the purpose of the Law School is three-fold—"To enable the student to build up, by his inductive study of cases and statutes, an organized knowledge of English and American Law; to train him in the habit of legal analysis of the concrete problems with which practicing lawyers have to deal; to develop in him a keen sense of professional ideals and a regard for legal ethics".

The Law School continued from 1842 until 1877, when the department was forced to be discontinued, due to an act of the Legislature cutting the salaries of the professors until competent men could not be secured. This department was out of the University until 1889, when the Board of Trustees made provision for its reestablishment in the next academic year.

The Law School was originally located in a downtown building, but upon the completion of Maxwell Hall, it was moved to the building where the present offices are located. Due to its rapid growth, the Law School was moved into Kirkwood Hall and later, owing to the continued growth, it was moved into Wylie Hall. In 1907 it was again moved into Maxwell Hall.

The library of the Law School now numbers about twelve thousand five hundred bound volumes of law reports, statutes, law treatises and law periodicals. It includes complete sets of decisions of forty-six states, United States reports, Federal Cases, Federal Reports, the entire National Report System, complete sets of the English Law reports since 1865, a considerable number of earlier English Reports, the English Reprints, the English Revised Reports, all the principal collateral Series of American Reports, the principal digests, and about fourteen hundred volumes of law treatises. It also contains all the statutes and session laws of the many states and territories of the United States. The library is the second largest in the State of Indiana, the State House library being larger.

The course of study in the Law School consists of four sessions, two of these sessions being each year. The students are divided into juniors and seniors, however, anyone who has attained elsewhere sufficient knowledge of the law may be admitted to the senior class. Instruction in this department is given by means of lectures and text books. Heretofore, the required course of study for the L.L.B. Degree remained at two years. In 1901 it was lengthened to three year's work.

The pre-legal entrance requirements were at first somewhat elastic. The candidate for a law degree "must satisfy the faculty of the school that he is prepared by previous training to enter upon the required course of study". In 1899, a four-year high school course was fixed as a minimum pre-legal education for an L.L.B. candidate. In 1909, the entrance requirements were increased to one year of college credit and in 1910 to two years of college credit. The school year consists of two eighteen-week semesters and a term of twelve weeks in the summer. To complete the course in the department, six semesters are required. The instruction used is the case method with the requirement of collateral reading.

LAW GOATS

Yea, we have them always with us and we maintain that they are the recipients of all the "buck" that passed.

First, we have the Booster's Club which consists mightily of lawyers, who find rooms for tournament visitors and watch the games from behind "pass badges".

Second, we have G. D. Newton who runs our paper and who editorially queries whether or not our date rules and honor point systems are a crime.

Third, we have one who is the goat of all laws—the stool pigeon, L. H. K.—oh will this ever happen again?

Fourth, we have the Medic School. They can't help being the goat. It comes natural to these opponents of the Laws, especially after the football contest.

Fifth, we have the date rules which we do not need and which are the "didn't know it was loaded" alibi of our campus.

Sixth, we had the closed basketball game with Iowa and lo! Sam Dargin's name lead all the rest.

Seventh, we have the male butterflies commonly known as "candies" by the fair ones, as Art, Brainy, Winey, Al, Schultzy, Johnny, Pash, Dinger, Jack, and Shorty.

Eighth, we have the worst goats of them all; the ones that always get our goat—those Legal-Pros.

Ninth, we have the Moot Court goats, those who take weeks hunting general denials. Jack E. leading the list.

Tenth, we have the Law School "crab, the "crab;" of all "crabs"; now Spenc. do stop this.

THE DEMURRER CLUB

FOR many years the students of the school of Law of Indiana University, have co-ordinated their efforts through the Demurrer Club. The organization, since its formation, has expressed the ideas of the students and faculty of the Law School. The Club was re-organized this year under a new constitution and a new set of by-laws.

The aims and objects of the Club are; That the faculty and students of the School of Law and many future students of law, now engaged in pre-legal endeavors, possess a keen realization of the grave problems now confronting this country and the world. It is ardently believed that a proper solution of such problems can be had only by just and fair application and amplification of the principles of law as developed since 1215—principles to which the hopes and visions of mankind have been anchored for more than seven centuries. The responsibility for the enforcement, interpretation, and development of the law is upon the legal profession, a profession standing today at the Bar of the World Forum, pleading a cause the success of which means for the world happiness, prosperity and good cheer; the failure of which means anarchy, famine, and chaos.

It is of surpeme importance that every effort be made to ennoble the profession from its already exalted position, not only to achieve a successful adjudication of present tribulations, but also to insure for the future a social foundation based upon principles of justice and righteousness so firm and secure as to be insensible to the most violent attacks.

Furthermore, the objects and aims of the Demurrer Club shall be: to teach and inculcate a proper understanding of the ethics of the legal profession; to insist upon a high standard of scholarship; to combat continually the still prevalent idea that the practice of law is an inherent right rather than one of the greatest distinctions and privileges that society can confer; to bring active members of the Indiana Bar into closer union with the students and with the work of the School of Law of Indiana University; to inculcate into those of proper character and training, a greater interest in the study of the law; to promote acquaintances and mutual understanding among the legal and pre-legal students of Indiana University.

GAMMA ETA GAMMA

GAMMA Eta Gamma was founded at the University of Maine by Judge Gardner of the Boston Bar. It was founded with a two-fold purpose of promoting good fellowship and maintaining high ideals among the students of law. The fraternity has grown rapidly and has chapters in the leading law schools of the country. Numerous alumni associations have been formed. Eligibility for membership is based primarily upon scholarship and prominence in school activities. Eta Chapter was installed in 1911. The fraternity maintains club proms in the Student Building.

PHI DELTA PHI

PHI Delta Phi was founded in 1869 at the University of Michigan by John M. Howard. The principal purpose of the fraternity is to maintain a high standard among the students of law, laying particular emphasis upon scholarship. At present the fraternity consists of forty-six active chapters located in the leading American Law Schools. There are also seventeen alumni organizations. Foster chapter was installed at Indiana University in 1900. The fraternity maintains club rooms in Maxwell Hall.

THE OATH OF HIPPOCRATES

I SWEAR by Apollo, the physician, and Aesculapius, and Health, and All-heal, and all the gods and goddesses, that, according to my ability and judgment, I will keep this oath and stipulation; to reckon him who taught me this art equally dear to me as my parents, to share my substance with him and relieve his necessities if required; to regard his offspring as on the same footing with my own brothers, and to teach them this art if they should wish to learn it, without fee or stipulation, and that by precept, lecture and every other mode of instruction, I will impart a knowledge of the art to my own sons and to those of my teachers, and to disciples bound by a stipulation and oath, according to the law of medicine, but to none others. I will follow that method of treatment which, according to my ability and judgment, I consider for the benefit of my patients, and abstain from whatever is deleterious and mischievous. I will give no deadly medicine to anyone if asked, nor suggest any such counsel; furthermore, I will not give to a woman an instrument to produce abortion. With purity and with holiness I will pass my life and practice my art. I will not cut a person who is suffering with a stone, but will leave this to be done by practitioners of this work. Into whatever houses I enter I will go into them for the benefit of the sick and will abstain from every voluntary act of mischief and corruption; and further from the seduction of females or males, bond or free. Whatever, in connection with my professional practice, or not in connection with it, I may see or hear in the lives of men which ought not to be spoken abroad, I will not divulge, as reckoning that all such should be kept secret. While I continue to keep this oath unviolated, may it be granted to me to enjoy life and the practice of the art, respected by all men at all times; but should I trespass and violate this oath, may the reverse be my lot.

INDIANA UNIVERSITY MEDICAL

HISTORY OF THE INDIANA UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MEDICINE

THE Indiana University School of Medicine, from a beginning 51 years ago, has grown numerically and efficiently until it has become one of the ranking schools of the Middle West. It now ranks in class "A", with such institutions as John Hopkins, Harvard, Cornell, Northwestern, and Rush Medical School.

Its steady growth has won an enviable place in the medical world. The Indiana Medical College, at Indianapolis, was organized in 1869. Later, other medical schools of the State were organized. The College of Physicians and Surgeons, Indianapolis, combined with the Indiana Medical College in 1878 and was afterwards a department of Butler College. Other Medical Colleges came into existence and after a time effected combinations until many of the schools were eliminated.

In 1905 the Medical College of Indiana, the Central College of Physicians and Surgeons and the Fort Wayne College of Medicine, all merged under the name of the Indiana Medical College, the School of Medicine of Purdue University. In 1907 the Indiana University School of Medicine and the State College of Physicians and Surgeons united under the name of the Indiana University School of Medicine. In 1908 the Indiana Medical College and the Indiana University School of Medicine were united under the name of the latter, thus finally merging all the medical schools of the State into one School of Medicine.

STUDENTS AT INDIANAPOLIS

On February 26, 1909, an act was passed by the State legislature, authorizing the trustees of Indiana University to conduct a medical school in Marion county, to receive gifts of real estate and other property on behalf of the State of Indiana, for the maintenance of medical education in Marion county, and declaring an emergency.

Two years of collegiate work, sixty semester hours, are required for entrance in the Indiana University School of Medicine. The first year of the four years medical course is emphasized at Bloomington, the seat of Indiana University. The last three years are given at Indianapolis. This is one of the few medical schools of the country which owns a hospital for clinical instruction.

A few years ago, Robert W. Long, an Indianapolis physician and a benefactor of humanity, gave to the University a large bequest, which has resulted in the erection of the Robert W. Long Hospital, well-equipped and modern, standing as an imposing structure and a monument to the donor, by the side of the Medical School on West Michigan street.

The faculty of the School of Medicine constitute the staff of the hospital, the work being apportioned by the educational committee. In this Hospital the best clinical instruction in medicine and surgery can be given. The students are admitted to the wards as clinical clerks and subordinate assistants. The teaching methods represent the highest type of medical and surgical skill and experience. During the last year, nineteen hundred patients were admitted to treatment.

FRONT ELEVATION OF NEW MEDICAL BUILDING

About forty thousand cases a year are treated in the dispensary. The obstetric service is so extensive that the students attend from five to ten times the number of cases required by the State Board. Hospital internships are open to all graduates of the School of Medicine on competitive examination or by appointment. Indiana University confers the degrees and issues the diplomas to graduates of the School of Medicine.

The Medical School now has students from Bulgaria, Japan and the Philippines. After completing the course, these students will return to their own countries to practice.

The Indiana University School of Medicine has an exceptional bright outlook for the future. With a strong and efficient faculty and staff, with a constantly growing and enthusiastic student body, and with fine buildings and equipments, modern and up-to-date, the Medical School will continually send out well-trained physicians and surgeons, amply able to combat disease and safeguard the health and life of the people.

THE NEW HOME OF INDIANA UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MEDICINE

ON the same tract of ground with the Robert W. Long Hospital on West Michigan street, now stands the beautiful new home of the Indiana University School of Medicine,—a part of the Robert W. Long Hospital. The splendid facilities of both buildings are included in the clinical and laboratory work of the Indiana University School of Medicine.

The School of Medicine ranks in Class A, along with other such famous institutions as Harvard, Cornell, Northwestern, Rush, Johns Hopkins and the University of Illinois. Indiana University School of Medicine has this term two hundred twenty-seven students, which is greater than the number of students at the University of Cincinnati, or Washington University at St. Louis.

The present building, of which Robert Frost Daggett was the architect, is only a part of what was planned for the complete Medical School building. Only the left wing has been built at this time. A wing to the south has been left for future construction. The main entrance to the building will be to the south. The building will face a plaza reaching to Michigan street with other buildings of the Medical School and Hospital located on either side of this plaza.

This extension will have the main entrance. The social service rooms will be on the ground floor, the general offices of the school and the dean's office on the first floor, and an auditorium seating five hundred people on the second floor.

The present wing of the building contains three laboratories and three lecture rooms large enough to provide for classes of one hundred students. Besides research rooms and smaller laboratories, there are numerous other rooms and a library.

All the laboratories have north light. A great deal of study was given in having each room arranged for the special work to be done in that room.

The new building is one hundred seventy-six by fifty-five feet in size and of fire-proof construction. It is four stories high. The heating, ventilation and plumbing all presented problems requiring a great deal of special study to obtain the best and most sanitary results. An electric elevator, program clock system, watchman's call system and intercommunicating telephones have been installed, making one of the most modern medical school buildings in the country. The portion of the building just completed will cost, with equipment, approximately $240,000.00 and the future addition approximately $100,000.00.

This handsome structure, along side of the Robert W. Long Hospital, is two blocks from the steadily expanding City Hospital. This location is becoming the great medical center of Indianapolis. The University owns nineteen acres of ground facing Michigan street, running back to North street, and a narrow strip beyond. A park or plaza, connecting the Robert W. Long Hospital and the Medical School, may be developed within another year, depending on the action of the Indianapolis park board.

The New Medical School building was formally dedicated late in September. Dr. William L. Bryan, President of Indiana University, Dr. C. P. Emerson, Dean of the Medical School, and Dr. E. D. Clark, Secretary of the School, talked on the opportunities afforded by the new buildings and equipment to advance medical knowledge.

Dr. Max A. Bahr was born in Indianapolis in 1874 and was graduated from Indianapolis high school in 1893. The following year he entered the Central College of Physicians and Surgeons, which was located in Indianapolis, and was graduated in 1896. After having served an internship in the City Dispensary in 1897, he became chief resident physician in the Government Emergency Hospital. He studied extensively abroad, receiving the degree of Doctor of Psychological Medicine from the University of Berlin in 1908. Since that time he has been clinical psychiatrist at the Central Hospital for Insane and holds the chair of Psychiatry in the Indiana University School of Medicine. He is an honorary member of the Chicago Medical Society and Vice-president of the Indianapolis Medical Society.

GRADUATING CLASS OF NURSES

TRAINING SCHOOL FOR NURSES

INDIANA University is one of the few schools in the country having in connection as an integral part of the University, a Training School for Nurses. There is no better way in which the University can serve the State than by turning out nurses who are adequately prepared for the profession which at all times commands our esteem, and just now our admiration. The didactic courses are given by the faculties of the Medical School and of the College of Liberal Arts, and the practical training is obtained at the Robert W. Long Hospital.

MAIN OFFICE SOCIAL SERVICE DEPARTMENT

THE SOCIAL SERVICE DEPARTMENT

THE Social Service Department belongs to the College of Liberal Arts. It is a teaching department. It is located in Indianapolis, where it must use for its social teaching, the same laboratory material which is available for medical teaching. In making this use of the Indianapolis City Dispensary and of the Robert W. Long Hospital for teaching purposes, it has developed a real service to patients and to the physicians.

It has become the business of the department to respond to the doctor's request for any form of relief, for convalescent care, for orthopedic apparatus, for change of employment for patients with heart disease, for provision for the care of chronic cases and for the employment or education of any handicapped. The doctor depends upon it for information about homes and habits which may help him about his patient; while the department knows that it can take no wise social action leading to cure without a physical diagnosis.

There is nothing, in addition to what the doctor himself can do, needed for the patient's medical care, which it is not the business of the department to try to furnish. In this service it gives attention only to patients in the medical institutions and takes no action except in co-operation with the physician. A part of this function of the department is the state worker, who follows patients home, when necessary, to the most remote portions of the State.

This service to patient and physician results in the accumulation of a vast amount of teaching material concerning social problems. The department has classes in sociology and medical sociology for the students of the Training School for Nurses and for junior students of the School of Medicine. To both of these groups it also offers limited opportunities for case work. It also gives a two-year undergraduate course to students of social service. Its best known work, however, is the graduate study in social service. This, with its combination of teaching, training and research, is the best of its kind.

This year the department is occupying beautiful offices on the second floor of the new School of Medicine. It still also maintains a branch office in the Indianapolis City Dispensary. Through both of these there passes a stream of human misery requiring help and another of students wanting to know how to give that help.

THE PASSING OF TOM

More than nine years ago, a wee, coal-black kitten meowed at the door of the home for internes, better known as Purity Hall. He was let in and immediately made himself completely at home. Tommie, as he was affectionately nicknamed in his youth, soon became the pal of all the medical students. He went to their rooms any time in the night or day and had only to make his wants known to have them gratified. In return for their kindness, Tom never allowed a mouse or a rat to as much as come near the place. And on long winter evenings, he kept company with the boys around the fireplace. He would sit in his own rocking chair, blink at the fire wisely, and enjoy the jokes as much as any of the crowd.

During the war Tom did his bit by posing with his benefactor, Daddy Lynn, for a picture to be sent to his pals in France.

Tom died on February 20, 1920, after one week's illness. His loss is keenly felt by all his friends and especially by Daddy Lynn. Tom was a faithful pal and has surely gone where all the good cats go.

THE MEDICAL SCHOOL AT BLOOMINGTON

IN 1903 the Indiana University School of Medicine became the fourth medical school in the United States to set the standard of two years or more of collegiate work as the minimum requirement for entrance. In 1908 the medical schools of the state were consolidated with the Indiana University school, Indiana being the pioneer state in the wave of consolidation which soon swept over the country, reducing the total number of medical schools from one hundred sixty-five then to about ninety today. Thus, this college of the University has a history of aggressiveness, which, coupled with its rating as a class "A" school, gives it an enviable record.

History is all right and future plans are necessary, but the present is always more interesting and that is what we want to tell about. You who pass Owen Hall have ample right to judge by the appearance of the small red brick exterior, the plaintive howl of the imprisoned canine in the hinder regions and the congregation of nicotineers who stand "at ease" before the gate. You have the hollow eyes of the medic to prove that the experiences within the walls are harrowing, and the report that many leave "By request" attests the rigor of the course. But these are the observations of the innocent bystander and the truth lies far from this.

To the man—beg pardon, to the man or woman,—who has completed the two years of required pre-medical work and who is genuinely interested in the subject of medicine, the work of Owen Hall is hard, but also full of interest and enjoyment, and the thirty-five hours required are not unreasonable. The course in Gross anatomy covers the dissection of the entire body. The Gross anatomy laboratory constitutes the terror of the top floor, though your mental picture of its "terror" is so far from its real condition of aseptic cleanliness that you would doubt the first glimpse you took. To dissect and learn the structure of the body is no small task, but it is one of the most interesting—and exciting—courses in the university. Your attention is called to the picture of this awful (?) place. And then to the busy executive who not only heads the Department of Anatomy, but also heads the various details of administration into the proper channels—this, my friends, is Dr. Myers. The Doctor is a busy man but he finds time to settle the problems of his boys—and then to go swimming with them. He is always on the job to see that the requirements are met and that the "pace" is maintained, but he's a booster for Indiana, in athletics and in everything else and besides that, he's a jolly good fellow.

Assisting Dr. Myers in his department (in addition to the student assistants) is Dr. J. A. Badertscher, whose specialties are Microscopical Anatomy and the Nervous System. The boys say that Dr. Badertscher "knows his stuff"—and what he dishes out with his "Get this, Gentlemen!" causes Medic heads to swim and Medic hearts to sink. Dr. Badertscher you will observe in fighting trim. He tells us things we never knew, he tells us more than we think possible to remember and he makes us learn in spite of ourselves. We're for you, "Dr. Jakie" 'cause you do us lots of good.

THE ANATOMY LABORATORY

DOCTOR MOENKHAUS

The Department of Physiology assumes full control of the first floor and the basement of Owen. Heading this department is Dr. Moenkhaus whose easy flowing lectures and vinegar flies are classic. The favorite expression of the Medics, concerning the Doctor, is "He tells us things so clearly we feel ashamed not to have known them before". But on examination—that's a different matter. Since Dr. Moenkhaus seems to be figuring at the top of his page we take it that he isn't figuring grades—unless it is the percentage of those who "don't know".

Mr. Harmon, deep in thought before his apparatus, is necessarily thinking of Temperature and Muscle Contraction—that's not hard to guess. He attempts to keep the Medics straight and for diversion he teaches three score girls that they are alive—and why. Harmon works on a frog every time the Ford Motor Company commits another sin. They are both past the million mark.

First we call the attention of all anti-vivisectionists to the Ether can so carelessly placed as to be in full control of the foreground. The four "characters" in the snap-shot are Mr. Kempf, Mr. Peck, Mr. Engle and Miss Ima Canine. In spite of all that could be done, it is reported that the operation was a success. Every Medic passes through the "Dog Room" stage and these three Assistants are on hand at recoveries and disasters alike. Their work is interesting and entirely humane.

"The Reader" is none other than the Physiologist, Dean, and head of the Department of Hygiene, Dr. Edmonson. A lot of his time is given to "Deaning" but he slips First Aid, "Rhincy" Hygiene and "Intelligent" Hygiene and Physiology into every chink of his time and so he's a busy man. On the side, a keen little game of billiards is rumored to come in well with the dean's good right arm propelling the cue.

The most important man on the job is Daddy Eckles—the most important because he carries the keys. He's the life of the place. He stands up for the Medics thru thick and thin, "for better or for worse" and "his boys" are no less loyal to him. It's hard to catch him still long enough for a snap-shot, even then he insisted on scratching his nose in order not to waste time.

DOCTOR EDMONDSON

FOUR PHYSIOLOGISTS

TABLOID FOR TIRED MEDIC

Time—12:45 P.M. (No lunch in sight).

Place—Physiology Laboratory.

Business—Experiment "Formation of Lymph".

Action—Dog breathing his last, with the experiment incomplete.

Condition—Dog, dying.

Surgeon (McMath) All "cut-up".

Anaesthetist (Fennell) Anaesthetised.

Recorder (Hochalter) On record—emphatically.

Flunkie (Hollett) Flunked out.

Conversation—Mrs. H.—"And my husband had HIS lunch".

Miss H.—"We have a P. Chem. lecture in 15 minutes".

Miss F.—"What do you think of this. Now we have to work Saturday afternoon".

Miss M.M.—"*_†b$8?-er-I mean Darn"!

Chorus—"Amen"!

JOKES

"JOKES"

Dr. Moenkhaus (Quizzing his Physiology class)—
"Mr. Greer, when Mr. Clark is standing upright does his blood obey the law of gravity and rush to his feet?"

Greer—"No, sir".

Dr. M.—"But if he should stand on his head then the blood would rush to his head, would it not?"

Greer—"Yes, sir".

Dr. M.—"Good, explain"

Greer—"Because there's nothing in it".

"Daddy" Eckles has a new one on himself—These are the facts:

534 bodies have been in the vats at Owen Hall.

533 have been removed for dissection.

I has crawled out as good as new. Ask "Daddy!"

Dr. Moenkhaus—(At Seminar. Having rolled a cigarette, now tapping his match box on the table at the rate of 72 per minute). "Well, let's save the other reports until Monday. I must get away".

"DADDY"

Scene—Histology class.
Action—Hurt—994 41-100
% asleep.

Dr. Badertscher—Discussing modifications of skin structure; "Now one of the most interesting of skin modifications is the corn. The question is WHAT MAKES IT HURT?"

Hurt (half 'roused from his slumber)—"I don't know".

OWEN

Kunkle (approaching Dean Edmondson)—"Good morning, Doctor, how did you like that cigar I gave you yesterday? Do you know that for 300 bands off of those cigars you can get a Victrola?"

Dr. Edmondson—"Kunkle, if I smoked 300 of those cigars, I wouldn't need a Victrola, I'd need a harp".

sororities

OUR SORORITY GIRLS

Dainty frocks and pretty faces
Lips that smile and tease;
Having all these pleasant graces,
Charming girls are these.

Laughter light and chatter gay,
Holding all enraptured,
Here in brilliant, glad array
Is their charm and spirit captured.

Turn the page and make your bow;
Unto each her due;
Groups of sisters; all the daughters
Of our old I. U.

MAY Queens may come and Popularity Contests may go, but there is one who fears neither votes for one cent each nor beautifully chiseled features. His title is perfectly secure as the "most popular man on the Campus". And this popularity, unlike that of most rushed people, keeps up its daily average year after year, never wavering, 'though perhaps stock is highest in the morning between the hours of nine and ten.

Sometimes he is sympathetic, this popular man, when trains are late or friends are neglectful. And again he is the interested sharer of good news.

He is our faithful, ever-patient, always-cheerful postman, Joe Neal.

Well,
We suppose we must Say Something
About the Men,
Since the Girls
Have Poetry
About them.

Fraternity Men
Are very Typical
And exceedingly Picturesque
In Short Stories,
College Plays
And Moving Pictures.
In Real Life,
They are Just Like Other Men,
We've noticed;
Addicted to Pipes,
And Fireside Stories,
And Views on Women
And Life;
All of Which
They Outgrow
In Time.

These
Are the Frat Men,
Bless 'Em
We knew Several
In our Youth.

THE 1920 ARBUTUS

ALTHOUGH the Arbutus is called the Senior Yearbook, we have attempted to make this one the Indiana University Yearbook; not because we wished to do less honor to our fellow seniors, but because we wished to do more honor to our University in her hundredth birthday.

We do not claim for this Arbutus that it is the biggest and best yet. Nor do we claim for it that it is complete: it is not. Lack of space has prevented its even approaching completion. Therefore, many events which may seem to you, our readers, to be very important, have of necessity been omitted. We have had to depend on our own judgment in the happenings and activities which we have included. We may not have pleased you in our choice at all. And perhaps many of you could have produced a better book.

But we are content in our own mind that we have done the best we could, with the resources and abilities which were at our disposal. In these days of strikes and general unrest, delays, the very things which we wished to avoid, have been inevitable. This condition, in turn, has upset our editorial plans many times.

However, we do not ask you to excuse us in any way,—we merely ask you to understand the things which we could not prevent, and to accept the 1920 Arbutus as our small contribution to the Centennial year.

AN APPRECIATION OF THE BUSINESS BOARD

IT is no small responsibility to assume the care of several thousand dollars which, now days, it takes to publish a yearbook. Nor is it an especially hard task to spend that much money. To the business manager is allotted the responsibility and to the editor the not-hard task of spending.

Without a business manager to furnish money, or at least to give assurance that the money will be forthcoming, an editor would last about as long as the proverbial snowball. The editor can plan,—the trouble is that he, or she, usually plans too much—but unless there is reliable financial backing, not a single plan can be carried out.

The Business Board has been in every way reasonable and considerate toward the editor this year. The members were careful in letting the contracts, they have helped in every way possible to make for early publication, and they have been extremely successful in their dealings with business men who were connected with firms holding Arbutus contracts.

The editor of the 1920 Book takes this opportunity of publicly thanking the Business Board for its promptness and help, without which the Centennial Arbutus, whatever its faults may be found to be, could not now exist.

THE INDIANA DAILY STUDENT

THE Indiana Daily Student, though theoretically a laboratory for students interested in journalism, is in practice more of a work shop than laboratory. Members of the staff must have had either practical experience or its equivalent in the study of journalism.

Since 1867, when the Daily Student was first established, it has served as the means of creating campus opinion among the students and of telling the University news. In the early days, it had nothing of the present-day appearance and not until a comparative recent time has it grown to its now recognized rank among the other university dailies in the country. After the building of the power plant and the remodelling of the old power plant site in 1914, the Student moved its offices to the campus.

In its publication over a period of fifty-three years, it has reflected the steady growth of Indiana University. The improvement which has come to the University has been chronicled in its columns. Besides the more important matters, it has found time and space to give attention to the lighter view of campus doings—the social side, the enjoyments of student activity—the human part of the University.

As a combination of laboratory and work shop, the Student has followed strictly the generally accepted journalistic rules. It has presented a correct typographical make-up without being bound too rigidly to conservatism for the imprint of character. From the viewpoint of the world, the worth of the Student may well indeed be estimated according to the success of the men and women who first found their love of printer's ink on its staff and who have since become successful in their profession.

The Student is published daily except Sunday and Monday. During the period of the Summer School, it is published twice a week. Besides appealing to the campus population, many alumni are subscribers. In the eyes of its readers, as well as the members of its staff, the Student is frequently spoken of as the W. G. C. D., which in the translation, means the World's Greatest College Daily.

Under the supervision of the Department of Journalism, of which Professor J. W. Piercy is the head, the division of the work on the staff has been in accordance with metropolitan newspaper principles. The ranking member of the staff is the editor-in-chief, who has under him only in less detail, other editors in descending rank. The reporters are assigned to beats which carry them into almost all the affairs of the University. The editor-in-chief is appointed by the department of Journalism and the other editors are appointed by the editor-in-chief. The school year is divided into three editorships; the summer school, the fall semester and the spring semester.

The three editors for the year 1919-20, in order of office, were Herman Gray, Frank Levell and G. Dallas Newton. The first two are members of the 1920 graduating class, while Mr. Newton is a junior. Mr. Gray in editing the Student during the Summer School session gave to his work the experience of several years' practical work. The Student which he published was highly commended by Dr. W. H. Howe, head of the Summer School, for its service and co-operation and general character. Mr. Levell, who acted as managing editor during the summer, became the editor-in-chief the fall semester. In beginning his term of office, Mr. Levell's initiative was expressed in his publishing a paper on the first day of school, a matter which had been thought impossible before. Mr. Newton who had been on the Student for the two years previous, was elected editor-in-chief for the spring semester, beginning February first. In his period of office several new features were added to the Student, a noticeable one was the changing of the Student from an afternoon to an early morning paper.

STAFF OF THE INDIANA DAILY STUDENT

THE Student Staff, the body which makes the Indiana Daily Student possible, is composed of students who have had previous practical newspaper experience, or who have completed the beginning course in Journalism. The Staff Banquets, at which men of note in the newspaper world are speakers, have been popular and instructive diversions of this year.

The Staff works on the same principle as does a metropolitan staff; the members have regular beats, and assignments, and their progress, or lack of that quality, is watched just as closely.

THE RED BOOK

THREE college generations ago a pamphlet containing the names of all students then enrolled in the University, was published by the Y.M.C.A. The pamphlet of those days and the small bound booklet which followed were intended for use as a directory to the students and faculty during the current year and were practically useless when addresses changed the following year.

The Red Book of today holds an entirely different plane. The directory brought up to date by a supplement the second semester still remains a feature of the book, but the editorial section puts it in the class of those more permanent records of the year. It provides information about Bloomington, Athletic schedules and records, campus organizations and University activities in general. It is a local directory to the field more extensively covered by the Arbutus at the end of the year.

Byron K. Elliott was editor of the 1919-1920 edition and J. Justin Schumann was business manager.

SIGMA DELTA CHI

THE old Press Club became Rho chapter of Sigma Delta Chi in 1913. Sigma Delta Chi is an honorary Greek letter fraternity of national scope for college men who aim to adopt journalism as a profession.

"The Blanket Hop", as the annual dance is called which the Indiana University chapter of Sigma Delta Chi gives, was given in the Men's Gymnasium this year on the night of the Syracuse football game and was the largest dance that has ever been given in the University. The proceeds were used, as is the custom, to purchase blankets for the seniors on the football team who have played on the varsity three years.

Sigma Delta Chi also selects "Resurrection Day", the date on which all students and faculty members are to don straw hats.

The organization serves the purpose at Indiana University of uniting more closely the men who are leaders in college journalism, and makes for united action in favor of causes that are for the general betterment of journalism at Indiana.

ASSOCIATION OF UNORGANIZED

AFTER suffering the same lapse of inactivity that many organizations during the war did, the Association of Unorganized was reestablished during the spring of 1918. Formerly the Association was a great force on the Campus in molding the opinion of the unorganized students.

The Association is composed of all men on the Campus who are not members of a fraternity. Its purpose is to bring the men together in a social way, so that they may become better acquainted with each other. This year their "Mixers" have been a great factor in bringing about a stronger sense of social unity among the unorganized men and women of the University.

INDIANA UNIVERSITY POST OF AMERICAN LEGION

THE idea of organizing an Indiana University Post of the American Legion first came to the minds of the returning veterans of the 150th Field Artillery while they were on the high seas enroute to America. A charter of the Legion was secured in December, 1919. Membership to the post is invitational and restricted to Indiana University men who have seen service in a major engagement overseas, or who have been wounded in action. At present the post has an enrollment of about fifty. Four of the number have been decorated with the Croix de Guerre.

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

THE Y. M. C. A. has extended its usefulness this year by increasing its budget and the number of departments of service. The double "Y" socials held each month were largely attended. The first semester the Association co-operated with local churches in Bible Study; the second semester in mission study. The World Problems Forum meetings were continued. The Boy's Work committee did some practical club work in the Bloomington schools. The service counter operated by the Y. M. C. A. during the S. A. T. C. proved its usefulness so thoroughly that it was continued this year. This counter is the headquarters of the assistant secretary where, with the aid of a staff of students, he furnishes information about employment, rooms, board, etc, and renders innumerable bits of service of all kinds.

The members of the cabinet as they appear in the picture are:

WOMEN'S LEAGUE BOARD

President
Vice-President
Secretary
Treasurer

VIVIAN WILLIAMS
GERTRUDE MIEDEMA
HELEN CLARK
MILDRED CLYMER

ALL general activities for women are carried on through the Women's League. It is an organization for every girl in the University, and its purpose is to bring about a unity for the betterment of conditions for women on the campus.

This year, the League has centered its efforts on Student Government for women and is raising a $5000 Thank Offering as a centennial gift to be used for woman's work at Indiana.

President	GEORGIA BROWN
Vice-President	CLEONE BLOOM
Secretary	HARRIET ELLIS
Treasurer	LOIS McFARLAND

THE Home Economics Club is still in its youth, being organized in 1915. The purpose of the club is to create greater interest in the general subject of Home Economics and to bring about a closer relationship among the students of that subject. Majors in the department and other students upon the recommendation of the faculty of the department are eligible to membership. Meetings are held on the second Wednesday of each month and Home Economic subjects of mutual interest are discussed.

Y. W. C. A.

President	DOROTHY DONALD
Vice-President	VICTORIA GROSS
Secretary	JOY THOMAS
Treasurer	HAZEL RICHARDSON

THE Young Women's Christian Association seeks to further the religious life of the University in every branch of its work and especially through its weekly vesper services. The Social Service Committee has been active in continuing the "Big Sister" movement and the night classes for working girls that were organized last year. Four delegates from the Association attended the Sixth International Convention of the Y. W. C. A. at Cleveland, and twenty-eight men and women represented the University at the Eighth International Student Volunteer Convention at Des Moines, Iowa.

FRESHMAN Y. W. C. A. COMMISSION

President	LOIS McDONALD
Vice-President	BLANCHE MAHON
Secretary	CAROL SHANKS
Treasurer	RUTH DILLON

THE Freshman Commission was organized this year for the purpose of giving to the freshman girls a clear idea of the work of the Young Woman's Christian Association and to develop leadership among the freshmen along association lines. The commission has been of great help to the Y. W. C. A. this year and has been a good training school for future Y. W. workers.

HISTORY AND POLITICAL SCIENCE CLUB

President	MARGARET COX
Vice-President	KENNETH GOOD
Secretary and Treasurer	DANIEL SNEPP

THE present History and Political Science Club was first organized in 1902 under the name of the History Club. At that time the History and Political Science departments were combined, but in 1914 were made into two separate departments, and simultaneous with this separation, the club assumed its present name.

Membership in the club is open to the faculty and to juniors and seniors majoring in the departments of History or Political Science. The club meets on alternate Thursdays and topics in the fields of History and Political Science are discussed.

TOP ROW—Goldman, Harris, Hepburn, Rust, Tharp, Stephenson, Curtis, Kellog.

LE CERCLE FRANCAIS

President	THOMAS PALFREY
Vice-President	ANNE JOHNSTON
Secretary	DOROTHY PAYNE
Treasurer	LEON VERRIEST

LE Cercle Francais was organized in order to further the interests of French outside of the classroom. Membership in the club is invitational, the main requisite of a member being a speaking knowledge of French. Meetings of the club are held on the first and third Thursday evenings of each month. The evenings are spent in social entertainments and in practice in conversational French. French problems and customs are favorite topics of discussion. French plays are presented frequently by the members of Le Cercle.

Top Row—Ringer, Coleman, Wilson, Hartzell, Dykhuizen, Davis, Hodson.
THIRD ROW—Carmichael, Reed, McFarland, Hauss, Miller, Nyswander, McFarland, Long, Magley, Hoover.

PHILOSOPHY CLUB

President	RAIMOND RINGER
Vice-President	CECIL CRAIG
Secretary and Treasurer	FARRALD MILLER

THE Philosophy Club was organized in order to bring about a closer relationship among the students in Psychology and Philosophy. Membership in the club is open to all faculty members in the department and to all advanced students in Psychology or Philosophy. Others are eligible to membership on invitation. The purpose of the club is to discuss informally, subjects which cannot be treated in the classroom. Frequently the philosophical or psychological aspect of such subjects as Biology, Economics, and History are brought to the club by faculty members from other departments.

TOP ROW—Wilson, Gullion, Lanham, Ellis, Snyder, Settle, Cochran, Rollison.
 FOURTH ROW—James, Galloway, Harris, McFarlin, Hull, Devin, Alward, Clendenin, Mills.

 FIRST ROW—Demaree, Lahr, Allen, Stanley, Winkenleger, Wilson.

BOTANY CLUB

President	CLAUD O'NEAL
Vice-President	WILLIAM ADAMS
Secretary and Treasurer	MADLINE GULLION

THE Botany Club was organized as a means of discussing scientifically, recent research and current developments along the line of Botany. The membership of the club consists of the faculty members and majors in the department of Botany, and of all others interested in Botany or botanical subjects who may be invited to membership. Regular meetings are held during the year on alternate Monday evenings. These gatherings tend to create interest in modern scientific problems and further the social interests of the club.

TOP ROW—Smith, Hayes, Haffner, Burton, Clymer, Deitch, Jeffries, Mumby.
THIRD ROW—Roth, Wise, Wheeler, Williams, Miller, Davidson, Weber, Wolpert, Taber.

EUCLIDEAN CIRCLE

President	BYRON ROBERTS
Vice-President and Treasurer	FRANCIS RANKIN
Secretary	GLENN GALLOWAY

THE Euclidean Circle was organized in 1907. Membership in the club is open to all members of the faculty in the Department of Mathematics, and to all students who have had more than fifteen hours work in the department. Meetings are held every two weeks on Monday evening. Talks are given by members of the club on subjects relating to mathematics. The purpose of the club is not only to be mathematical but also to be social, and to attain this end the last meeting of each semester is of a purely social nature.

TOP ROW—Dougherty, Barbour, Bergdoll, Parker, Davis, Waynick, Victor, Bone.
 THIRD ROW—Davenport, Wilson, Carmichael, Roby, A. Byrum, Cook, Pearson, Grimes.

ECONOMICS CLUB

President	ARLO BYRUM
Vice-President	RUSSELL ASHBY
Secretary and Treasurer	JOY THOMAS
Chairman, Program Committee	IRVIN BONE

THE purpose of the Economics Club is to promote a closer relationship among the students majoring in the department of Economics and Sociology. Membership to the club is open to all faculty members and seniors in the department and to juniors in the department upon invitation. Meetings are held bi-weekly, at which short entertaining programs are rendered. Subjects of social and economic characters are discussed, and from time to time addresses are given by prominent social and economic leaders.

President	LEIGH HUNT
Vice-President	PELAGIO VILLIARIN
Secretary	MILDRED CLYMER
Treasurer	ANTONIO ALONSO

EL Club Espanol is one of the more recent organizations. It was organized as the result of the increased interest which has been shown in the language. The membership of the club is composed of all faculty members of the Spanish department, and of the best students in Spanish who are eligible on invitation. The club meets on alternate Tuesdays evenings. Conversational Spanish is practiced, and current problems are discussed. The social side of the club is encouraged by means of Spanish games and plays.

SHORTRIDGE CLUB

President	HENRY KEEHN
Vice-President	CATHERINE CLIFFORD
Secretary	ALMA DAVIS
Treasurer	NATHAN WASHBURN

SINCE the Shortridge High School is so well represented by its graduates at Indiana University, the Shortridge Club has been organized to further the interests of the two schools. The club is of a social nature. Meetings are held on the first Thursday evening of each month. Various kinds of entertaining programs are given by the members of the club at its several meetings during the year. The membership of the club is composed of all those who have attended the Shortridge High School.

TOP ROW—Sears, Kline, Clark, Mitchell, Mallott, Hogan, Duncan.

BEDFORD CLUB

President	GEORGE ARMSTRONG
Vice-President	WILLIAM BOYD
Secretary and Treasurer	VIVIAN WILLIAMS
Sponsor	ANNA CLARK

FOLLOWING the example set by the Shortridge Club, there has been formed during the present year an organization called the Bedford Club. The membership of this club is composed of all students attending Indiana University who reside in Bedford Indiana. The purpose of the club is to encourage Bedford students to attend Indiana University, and to bring about a closer fellowship among them during their university career. The club has been very successful during the present year and promises to be one of the prominent clubs on the campus in the future.

Vice-President	CORA HENNEL
Secretary	LOIS HANS
Treasurer	ROBERT SINCLAIR
Chapter Editor	HUBERT SANDERS
Business Manager	ABRAHAM ZIMMERMAN

THE Cosmopolitan Club is an organization of foreign students for the purpose of promoting brotherhood and cosmopolitan interests among representatives of various foreign countries in Indiana University. The club is a charter of the International Cosmopolitan Society, having received its charter in 1918. Membership in the club is invitational. Nationalities represented in the club this year are: French, Russian, Spanish, Chinese, Filipino, and American. Meetings of the club are held bi-weekly and the subjects discussed are of a cosmopolitan nature.

MARQUETTE CLUB

President	DORWAN KEANE
Vice-President	ANNE KIMPEL
Secretary and Treasurer	MABLE BROOKS

THE Marquette Club was organized in 1907 and has been in continuous existence since that time. All Catholic students of the University are eligible to membership in the club. The purpose of the club is to bring students of the Catholic faith into closer social and religious relations. Meetings are held bi-weekly, and programs are given which have both religious and social value. The social feature of the club during the present year was an elaborate festival given in its honor by the local chapter of the Knights of Columbus.

MEN'S GLEE CLUB

THE Men's Glee Club is composed of about thirty of the best singers in the University. The club is under the directorship of Mr. J. L. Geiger. During the present year it has been managed by Hiram Stonecipher. The club usually gives several concerts at Bloomington during the year. In addition to these local concerts, there is one and sometimes two trips during the spring, and concerts are rendered at different cities and towns throughout the state.

THE ENGLISH CLUB

The English Club is composed of seniors and graduate students of the department, and others interested in the subject who may be invited.

THE BROWNING CLUB

The Browning Society is an organization whose purpose is to study the works of Browning and to hold informal discussions of the life of the poet.

THE LINCOLN LEAGUE

The Lincoln League is an organization of the Republican students of the University. Political and party problems are discussed at the meetings.

THE JACKSON CLUB

The Jackson Club is composed of the Democratic students of the University. It seeks to interpret Democratic principles and to further the causes of the party.

HONORARY FRATERNITIES

PHI BETA KAPPA

Phi Beta Kappa established a chapter at Indiana in 1909. Its members are elected at Thanksgiving time and at Commencement each year. The principle requirement is a high standard of scholarship.

SIGMA XI

Sigma Xi has for its aim the encouragement of scientific investigation and research. It elects seniors, graduate students and in a few instances, undergraduates who have shown unusual ability and interest in the sciences.

PHI DELTA KAPPA

Phi Delta Kappa is a national educational sorority. Members are elected on considerations of scholarship in the department of Education.

PI LAMBDA THETA

Pi Lambda Theta, an educational fraternity, was established at Indiana University in 1919. Students of Education who have made superior grades in the department are eligible to membership.

RESERVE OFFICERS TRAINING CAMPS

Co. "E"

Co. "F"

Co. "D"

GREAT progress has been made in the Cadet Corps at Indiana University during the past year. Although the general attitude towards any more military organization after the war was not very favorable for re-establishing the Senior Unit here of the Reserve Officers Training Corps, Captain R. E. O'Brien, the new Commandant, was able to put a new impetus into the work and to make it one of the powerful organizations in University affairs.

The work in Cadet Battalion commanded by Cadet Major Noble C. Butler, was not confined merely to drill and to the study of military subjects. A new relation sprang up between the Military and Athletic Departments which resulted in working out mass games for the men of the R. O. T. C. and various athletic carnivals in which the six companies competed with the keenest rivalry. Captain O'Brien co-operated with Coach Stiehm during the football season on many occasions and was instrumental in getting a large band composed of many R. O. T. C. men to play at the games.

Again, a part of the Military Department assisted in the work for the new uniforms for the band which resulted in a campaign for three thousand dollars and which made the Indiana Band a peer of any in this part of the country. Before these new uniforms arrived, Captain O'Brien made it a point to outfit from the R. O. T. C. storeroom a band of ninety men so that a good appearance might be made at Indianapolis for the first game of the season. This matter of new uniforms was one of the biggest undertakings on the campus. The attitude is that whatever can be done to help the University through the Military Department will be done cheerfully and efficiently.

In the celebration of the Foundation Day, the Cadet Corps and the Band were again called upon to take part.

This time they escorted the speakers from the Hotel Bowles to the University. Although it was very cold and the streets were very slippery, the Band played while marching and the men kept their alignment. Here again showed the spirit of the new R. O. T. C.

CAPTAIN R. E. O'BRIEN

The Unit took part during the Easter vacation in an Army recruiting trip through Southern Indiana. Forty members of the Band under Archie Warner and sixty members of a selected crack drill company commanded by Cadet Major Butler made the trip. They were entertained royally along the route by the Indiana Alumni and were given a splendid reception at West Baden.

For all this University activity, in addition to excellence in drill, the corps was given the honor of being chosen as one of the twenty-five colleges out of fifty-four in the United States having R. O. T. C. units which are examined by General Staff officers to determine their eligibility for the Distinguished College Class. Colonel James F. McKinley, Inspector, in his report to the Adjutant General said of the local unit: "The Morale of the Unit is fine.—The instructors show a thorough knowledge of drills and demonstrated their ability to impart this knowledge. The showing made by the companies in their close and extended order work was very good. The appearance of the cadets during inspection was excellent. The cadet officers and non-commissioned officers show results of adequate training for the length of time they have been undergoing instruction.

Colonel McKinley reported in part:

"There is perfect co-operation between the military and academic departments and between the military and athletic departments.

"The following credits for military work are given to members of the R. O. T. C. toward graduation: freshmen two hours, sophomore three hours, juniors and seniors five hours.

"It is the opinion of this office that the War Department is justified in continuing the maintenance of the infantry unit at this institution. The prospects for the future are very bright and a considerable increase in the enrollment of students in the advanced course next year is predicted".

The spirit of progress and enthusiasm infected the cadet officers and non-coms and one of their biggest accomplishments during the year was securing a charter for a Company of Scabbard and Blade, the National Military Fraternity.

THE GALLERY RANGE

The object of this Honorary fraternity is to promote a better spirit between the enlisted men and the cadet officers, and between the cadet officers and the Military Department.

There is still a great deal to be done in improving the unit and the theory of instruction. But if as much progress is made next year as has been made this one just passed, the future is indeed bright for bringing honors to the University through her Military Department.

Back of all the work is the personal magnetism and diligence of Captain O'Brien. All campus organizations feel free to call upon him for any service, for they know it will be gladly rendered.

Prospects for next year point towards a larger enrollment in the advanced course. This means that in the near future men will be granted Second Lieutenant's commissions in the Reserve Corps and this will mean that the aim of the Reserve Officers Training Corps will have accomplished its greatest end at Indiana University.

EXTENDED ORDER

Perhaps one of the biggest gala occasions at the University this year was Armistice Day. A crowd estimated at three thousand packed the stands on Jordan Field on November 11. Classes were dismissed and the student body with many townspeople came to hear President Bryan and to pay honor to the War Veterans. A Parade was given by the Cadet Corps in honor of the occasion. The entire program, in fact the whole affair, was planned and directed from the Military Department. All ex-soldiers wore their uniforms and were given the place of honor in the ceremonies. All who attended were warm in their praise and Captain O'Brien was captioned as "a past master of ceremonies".

PRESIDENT BRYAN SPEAKING ON ARMISTICE DAY

SPRINGTIME ACTIVITIES

The moon shines in the April sky,
Her gentle light is kind and sweet
To strolling couples passing by
Along the dim and shady street.
Above the slow tap-tap of felt
One hears the trill of laughter light;
Their happiness would seem complete
I wish I had a date tonight!

The air is softer than a sigh;
It brings no chill; no choking heat,
But softly thrills with murmured "Why?
"Why stay indoors? Why so discreet
"While spring goes by on pinions fleet"?
I knew full well the breeze is right
But all I do is to repeat
I wish I had a date tonight!

For to a timid person such as I
To get a date's a fearful feat;
A feat that calls for a supply
Of nerve that drives me in retreat;
Yet I would often like a seat
With fair ones at my left and right,
Pretty, charming, trim and neat:
I wish I had a date tonight!

Scandals of 1920

SAME OLD STORY

College Life is Mostly
 One thing After Another
 Anyway.
 In the Beginning,
 You tell the Same Old Story
 About how Glad
 You are to See
 Everyone,
 When you Know
 You aren't Always.
 Then there Are
 The same Old Dances
 That the Union
 Chaperones,

You know a New
 Step or two,
 But the Picture
 Tells the Rest.

And this Year
 We had the Centre Game
 Which was New;
 We Won.

THAT GUILTY FEELING:-
The Corsage
You SENT—

And the Sorority Dances;
You had a Bid
From Someone
You never Saw;
You tried to Find Out
Who she Was Beforehand,
But Failed.
Hence, the Flowers.

In the Meantime
You rushed a Little
For the Sake of the Lodge
And the Benefit of the Downtrodden Freshman.

THE OLD ORDER CHANGETH—

Then there
Were those House Dances
So prevalent
This Winter,
Which disturbed the Morale
Of the Cellar Gang.

The Tournament
Was the Best Thing
In the Whole Year;
It developed Endurance,
And Patience
And Vocabularies;
Show us a Better Course.

Of Golf,
Its just like Measles,
The Boys have it
At a Certain Age,
And even the Girls
Are Neglected.

Baseball;—
You sit on the Bleachers
And hear
The Third Baseman
Talk a Little
And say Not-Nice Things
About the Umpire
As of Yore.
Well,
We told you
'Twas the Same Old Story.

A SCANDAL OF SORORITY ALLEY

Slowly, looking backward with a melancholy and regretful glance, the man came down the sorority-house steps. His face was drawn with the sad lines of disappointment, and a whisp of a tear could be seen gathering in each eye. When almost to the gate, he turned and looked up at the house. For just a second, he got a glimpse of a familiar form, of a well-known dress within a window. With a sudden quiver of resentful anger, he clenched his fist and started to shake it in the direction of the house; but stopped. After all, he was a man, and must let no such ungallant deed blacken his honor. He merely sighed again, gritted his teeth, and passed on.

He was the janitor, and had just been fired by the chaperone for turning off the heat at eleven-thirty, before her girls had begun to return from their evening engagements.

The two little strips of engraving on either side of this page need no comment,—only observation. On the left is a pictorial denial of the old, melodramatic, hackneyed caption: The woman Pays. On the right are some of the main things one fights for at Indiana. The darkness of the picture is purely natural and intentional.

And now, having made these explanations, we are going to fill up the page with some old stuff; not because we think its funny, but because we do think it corresponds nicely in age to the Centennial.

Al—I commenced on page seventy-six.

Prof. H.—Yes, Barnum commenced numbering his wagons at seventy.

Skinny W.—What kind of tobacco do you like best?

Duffy R.—Anybody's.

Harry S.—I feel like thirty cents tonight.

Lillian H.—My! Haven't things gone up since the war!

Vic M.—Isn't she a little tiresome?

Dinger—No, perfectly.

John K calling his Rhiny!

Where is that blockhead of mine?

Bob R.—On your shoulders.

YOUNG MAN'S SOLILOQUY AT A FORMAL DANCE

Don't I look nice?

The vest is Bill's,
The shirt, Abe Hill's;
The trousers are
Those of John Carr.
The long-tailed coat—
I just can't quote
Its owner's name,
But just the same
It isn't mine.

Oh, I look fine

Take my advice:

If you'd look swell
The same as I;
Beg, borrow, steal,
But do not buy!

For Activities like these wear a Braxton

For dress you want a belt that has style; for business, one that is comfortable; for play, one that allows of unhampered movement.

In the common run of belts you get at most only one of these services—when you wear a Braxton, the belt for men, you get all three.

Have your haberdasher show you a Braxton, and in a flash—quick—you'll see why.

You'll find Braxtons made up in seven superb leathers, with snaps for interchangeable buckles; you'll find a combination of color, cut and finish that will delight your eye and smarten up your appearance.

And you'll note that at the points where it encircles the hips, the Braxton is specially shaped—it's what makes the Braxton so easy to wear at the desk, on the courts, or while "stepping out". This feature likewise gives your trousers a hang that's exactly right.

Your favorite men's shop will have Braxtons. You can get yours today.

Entering the World Electrical

THE graduate of today enters a world electrical.

Gathered from the distant waterfalls or generated by the steam turbine, electric power is transmitted to the busiest city or the smallest country place.

Through the co-ordination of inventive genius with engineering and manufacturing resources, the General Electric Company has fostered and developed to a high state of perfection these and numerous other applications.

And so electricity, scarcely older than the graduate of today, appears in a practical, well developed service on every hand.

Recognize its power, study its applications to your life's work, and utilize it to the utmost for the benefit of all mankind.

A PAGE OF ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

FOR unskilled editors, such as yearbook editors must necessarily, to a great extent, be, the task of producing a book would be a hopeless one, were they not given some outside help and advice. We desire here publicly to make acknowledgment of the service and interest which has helped make the 1920 Arbutus a reality.

To the Indianapolis Engraving and Electrotyping Company for the care with which the engravings for the Arbutus were made, and especially to Mr. L. W. Bonsib for his personal interest and help at all times in the work.

To Mr. Charles G. Shaw for the excellent photography in the book and for the sincere interest and patience which he displayed throughout our dealings with him.

To the Rogers Printing Company for the careful arrangement of pages and selection of type, and for the typographical accuracy, without which our editorial work would have been a great deal more complex.

To L. Strauss and Company for permission to copy the picture which heads the Athletic Section.

To the many others with whom we have come in contact, who have helped us in our task of putting out an Arbutus, we extend our sincere gratitude.

The Editors

"A WOMAN'S LAST WORD"

ON the last page, my readers, you will find the Afterword, which was written several months ago and was an expression of the anticipated fulfillment of our many hopes and aspirations, now, alas, gone before. What we are writing on this page is really the Afterwards.

Mr. Strauss will be very glad (?) to tell you how much this little book cost, how many pounds of paper there are in it,—etc., etc., etc.

Let us add:

One thousand eighty-one cups strong coffee.

Two hundred seventy coca colas.

Five hundred forty hours after midnight.

Thirty-seven dates broken.

Two visits to the dean.

Three hours D.

Five hours smoke-up.

Two different disgusted landladies.

And besides this, we have had to go about the Campus with our titian hair, (once our pride and glory,) ungroomed and our freckles uncovered, thereby losing our reputation in many ways. Also, we have made many enemies, due to the fact that the camera won't lie.

And as we are writing this, the "political pot is boiling again", to quote from the W. G. C. D. The expectant editor is even now prating of new things,—an entirely different book, oh, so different from the 1920 attempt, as it were. Oh, well, time will tell. We haven't even the energy left to fill out the page by defending ourselves. Sleep, blessed sleep, the poet called it, is what we crave.

Ye Editor-in-Chief

Afterword

If we have held your interest to this page,
And kept for you a record that you read
With some enjoyment, of this year;
If we have given to your eyes no great offense
By errors both in type and in context;
If we have made for you a book
Which in the after years will bring to you
Good memories of the Anniversary,
Then we can ask no more:
Our task is done.
